Nixon, Dean Held Watergate Sessions

WASHINGTON (AP) — The White House acknowledged today that President Nixon conferred this year with John Dean III about the Watergate scandal but said logs detailing the time and place of such sessions would not be provided to Justice Department or senatorial investigators.

Reports published during the weekend said Dean, fired as White House counsel April 30, has told prosecutors and Senate investigators that he had 30 to 40 meetings with Nixon earlier this year.

Deputy press secretary Gerald L. Warren, who earlier had denounced the published reports in a formal statement, said in response to a question that "obviously there were topics of interest this year that would have involved office of counsel."

Warren said the topics included Nixon's own Watergate investigation, administration policy on citing executive privilege and hearings on the unsuccessful nomination of L. Patrick Gray to be director of the FBI.

Asked if the White House had kept logs to detail occasions on which the two men conferred either in person or by telephone, Warren said staff aides had kept such diaries.

Still responding to questions, the deputy White House spokesman said "the President's logs are not subject to subpoena," and would not be made available either to a federal grand jury or the Senate's Watergate investigating Committee. He said to supply the materials would be "constitutionally inappropriate."

A newsman suggested that if such logs exist, the White House might have evidence to refute any claim by Dean that he had repeated meetings with Nixon on Watergate.

Warren said he was "not going to discuss what may become evidence from this podium."

Warren said, in replying to still another question, that Dean "of course was acting as counsel to the President" and there was an attorney-client relationship between them.

Warren would not say whether Nixon was among those he consulted before issuing a statement Saturday that denounced allegations of frequent Nixon-Dean discussions of Watergate.

The earlier White House statement had called stories in the Washington Post and New York Times "part of a careful, coordinated strategy by an individual or individuals determined to prosecute a case against the President in the press using innuendo, distortion of fact and outright falsehood."

The statement added that "this manipulation of the press involves an unprecedented assault on judicial and administrative due process. Its objective, stated in the simplest terms, is to destroy the President. We categorically deny the assertions and implications of this story."

The Post quoted sources as saying Dean told Senate investigators and federal prosecutors that he discussed aspects of the Watergate coverup with the President or in his presence on at least 35 occasions between January and April of this year.

Police Say POW Death Was Suicide

HARRISON, N.Y. (AP) — A medical examiner says a note in French found near the body of Air Force Capt. Edward A. Brudno, a former prisoner of war, translates roughly to "life was not worth living."

Brudno's body was discovered Sunday at the home of his wife's parents, where he had been living since his return last February from more than seven years of confinement in North Vietnam.

A psychiatrist from Newton, Mass., said he had been treating Brudno recently.

Police called the death a suicide. But the Westchester County medical examiner's office said it would not rule on the death until further medical tests were complete.

However, Dr. Henry Ryan, the deputy chief medical examiner, said, "I know the police have told people it was a suicide. They have reason to."

Ryan said Brudno had a plastic bag over his head when his body was found on a bed. He said the bag "wasn't obstructive" and that more tests, including examination for drugs, will be needed.

The time of Brudno's death was set at late Saturday night or early Sunday.

Harrison police said Brudno, who would have been 33 today, had left a will dated May 22 and nine sealed letters in addition to the note in French.

Brudno married Deborah Gitenstein a few months before leaving for Vietnam in 1965. Police said she received the news of his death at his parents' home in Quincy, Mass.

She returned to her parents' home Sunday.

Brudno was shot down over North Vietnam in a F4 Phantom jet Oct. 18, 1965. Released last February, he was attached to Westover Air Force Base in Massachusetts but was on convalescent leave.

'Kidnap' Hoax For Newlyweds

STEELVILLE, Mo. (AP) — "Help! I've been kidnapped. Take the license plate number of this car and call the police," the note on the cap of the car's gasoline tank read.

A service station attendant here found the note Sunday when he began filling the tank of a car passing through this east-central Missouri town.

The attendant followed the instructions, and less than an hour later the Missouri Highway Patrol stopped the car about 30 miles away near Potosi. But instead of a kidnapper and a victim, the investigating patrolman said he found newlyweds.

"The note was apparently just a hoax," the Highway Patrol concluded.

Tight Fit

While it may not be in the same league with stuffing telephone booths, getting four rambunctious kids into a small wading pool takes a certain amount of cooperation on the part of all participants. These

Watergate Hearings To Resume Tuesday

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Sam J. Ervin Jr. says he plans to resume the Senate Watergate hearings Tuesday despite special prosecutor Archibald Cox's request that the televised sessions be delayed several weeks.

The North Carolina Democrat who heads the Senate Watergate committee told a news conference in Boston Sunday that Cox had asked him to postpone further hearings until indictments have been returned. Ervin said that could mean a two- to four-month delay but it won't happen "if it's up to me."

"The Justice Department has had this case for almost a year," Ervin observed. "The American people have a right to get to the bottom of this."

The panel is set to resume the hearings with Sally Harmony as the first of five former Nixon campaign workers to be questioned this week. Mrs. Harmony, who was a secretary to convicted conspirator G. Gordon Liddy, probably will be followed by Robert Riesner, Liddy, ex-campaign committee treasurer Hugh W. Sloan and former commerce secretary and campaign finance chief Maurice Stans, committee sources report.

Meanwhile, Democratic National Chairman Robert S. Strauss confirmed an Associated Press report that his Dallas, Tex., home was broken into and ransacked three weeks after the Watergate break-in last year. Nothing was stolen, he said, but he believes the burglars apparently were searching for party financial records.

Strauss was party treasurer at the time, and Watergate burglar Bernard L. Barker has testified his men were looking for Democratic financial records when they were caught inside party headquarters at the Watergate complex last June 17. Barker said they found none.

Columnist Jack Anderson reported today that call girls were recruited "to wheedle political secrets" from Democrats at their Miami Beach convention last year. But investigators "have been unable to determine whether they were actually used," Anderson wrote.

James W. McCord Jr. one of the Watergate burglars, interviewed Sunday on the CBS broadcast "Face the Nation," said he is convinced that President Nixon "set in motion the Watergate operation and followed through on it."

But the former CIA and re-election campaign security officer admitted he had no direct evidence linking Nixon to the break-in.

McCord said his conclusions are based on hearsay and his knowledge of how the Committee for the Re-election of the President operated.

Nixon has denied any prior knowledge of the incident or any effort to cover up high-level involvement in it.

Minh Charges Peace Blocked by Saigon

SAIGON (AP) — Ex-president Duong Van Minh today accused the Saigon government of "blocking the restoration of peace" by oppressing non-Communist opponents of President Nguyen Van Thieu.

In battlefield action, the Saigon command reported Communist gunners shot down a South Vietnamese helicopter Sunday, killing all six crewmen, and at least 55 Communist soldiers were killed in two clashes.

Minh issued a statement saying that even if the talks beginning Wednesday in Paris between Henry A. Kissinger and Hanoi's Le Duc Tho are successful, "the correct implementation of the Paris agreement, in practice, depends nevertheless on the goodwill of the two opposing sides of South Vietnam."

Minh, who reportedly is planning a political comeback, said: "If the two sides of South Vietnam wish to see the people begin to acknowledge their goodwill they must take the following steps immediately:

— "Abolish all laws and measures infringing the basic freedoms of man..."

— "Set free immediately the political prisoners, especially university and high school students and those who have struggled for democracy, for peace, so that they may return early to their families without being forced to go where they do not wish to go."

Minh noted that the Thieu government on May 12 put into effect a law which he said "lays down the detailed measures for sending to concentration camps, assigning forced residence, or banishing the elements considered dangerous to national defense, national security and public order."

A Saigon government official denied there were political prisoners in South Vietnam, but said fundamental liberties must be limited because the country is on a war footing.

"As soon as North Vietnam pulls out its 300,000 troops now in the South, as soon as

Senate Committee Chops Capital Improvements Bill

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — The Missouri Senate Appropriations Committee chopped more than $30 million off the House version of a state capital improvements bill today.

The Senate committee bill of $52 million — most of which will come from federal revenue sharing money — will go to the Senate tonight and will be considered Tuesday, Senate Appropriations Chairman Norman Merrell, D-Monticello, said.

The Senate committee version is similar to Gov. Christopher S. Bond's recommendation of $45.8 million for the 1973-74 fiscal year.

In other action, the committee reappropriated $38.5 million in funds previously appropriated but not spent.

There was strong disagreement in the committee on several items, and the bill was expected to go to a joint House-Senate conference committee.

All appropriations bills must be approved by Friday midnight, one week before the legislature adjourns.

Sen. Raymond Howard, D-St. Louis, failed in an effort to have $1 million for urban community action programs added to the capital improvements bill and said he would vote against the bill on the Senate floor.

Sen. A. Clifford Jones, R-Brentwood, asked to be relieved from the conference committee on capital improvements as a result of the committee's restoration of $7.4 million for a juvenile treatment center at the St. Louis state hospital while Jones was making a phone call.

He opposed the high cost and said the restoration damaged the Senate's bargaining power with the House.

The committee went back to the governor's recommendation of $1.4 million for the Ellis Fischel Cancer Hospital, wiping out the House figure of $11.5 million for building a new wing.

Torture Reported By Pilots

TEL AVIV (AP) — Three Israeli pilots released by Syria in exchange for 57 prisoners held by Israel said their captors tortured them regularly during their three years in jail.

After their repatriation Sunday, one of the pilots told newsmen he had been beaten about his body and on the soles of his feet and had been subjected to electric shocks on several occasions.

Another said that, when they reminded their captors of the Geneva Convention governing the treatment of prisoners of war, they were told the rules didn't apply to them.

In exchange for the pilots, Israel handed over 56 Syrian and Lebanese POWs and a Druse leader from the occupied Golan Heights who was convicted of spying for Syria.

The Israeli military command said the released Arab POWs were the last held by Israel from either Syria or Lebanon and neither Syria nor Lebanon held any more Israeli prisoners. Israel continues to hold 55 Egyptian prisoners it wants to exchange for 10 Israelis jailed in Egypt.

The exchange ended almost a year of negotiations through the International Red Cross. Israel had sought to have the Egyptian-held Israelis included in the exchange but earlier this year softened its stand, the state radio said.

The 56 Arab POWs included five Syrian officers and 10 Lebanese captured in a raid into southern Lebanon last June and in a border clash last September. Most of the other Syrians had been prisoners since a June 1970 armored incursion into Syria.

$355,000 for four more tourist information centers, $9 million from the University of Missouri for a music and performing arts center in Kansas City and a general services building at the St. Louis campus.

Left intact was $6.4 million for a veterinary medicine complex at Columbia and $1.5 million for air conditioning work at the Columbia campus and $2 million for general repairs at all four campuses.

The committee went back to the governor's recommendations on the other state universities, but at the urging of Howard, retained a House proposal for $150,000 for a new running track at Lincoln University.

The committee gave Missouri Southern at Joplin $204,000 compared with $75,000 by the House. The Senate committee figures for the other universities, compared with the House figure for capital improvements:

Missouri Western at St. Joseph, $268,000, $85,000; Central Missouri State, $1.2

million, $250,000; Northeast Missouri State, $1.8 million, $1.8 million; Northwest Missouri State, $1.3 million, $1.9 million; Southeast Missouri State, $903,000, $1.2 million; and Southwest Missouri State, $1.9 million, $1.3 million.

A joint conference committee reached agreement Sunday night on operating budgets for higher education, corrections, mental health and welfare.

The totals, worked out in 20 hours of negotiations during the weekend, now go back to both houses.

The committee didn't vary much on the total budgets. The arguments centered on specifics, and the University of Missouri budget took up most of Sunday's discussion.

The conference committee came up with $104.7 million from general revenue (state taxes) for the University of Missouri. The Senate had approved $103 million, the House $107 million and the governor had requested $106 million.

Experts Examining Soviet Plane Crash

GOUSSAINVILLE, France (AP) — Aviation experts sifted through the wreckage of a Soviet supersonic airliner today trying to learn why the pride of Russia's civilian air fleet crashed.

Thousands of spectators watched as the four-engine TU144 exploded during an exhibition flight Sunday at the Paris air show. Flaming wreckage crashed onto the town of Goussainville north of Le Bourget airport.

Fourteen persons were killed, 28 were injured. The dead included two Russian pilots and four other crew members, the only ones aboard the streamlined plane.

It was the first reported crash of a supersonic civilian airliner since the Soviets began their program in the mid-1960s. The plane has a maximum cruising speed of 1,550 miles an hour — 2.35 times the speed of sound.

A French-British consortium has built four Concorde supersonic jets, and the latest version made a demonstration flight just before the TU144's.

Witnesses saw the Russian plane make a low level, subsonic pass before the grandstand and then go into a steep climb with the undercarriage lowered.

Pilot Mikhail Koslov leveled out just below the cloud cover. The TU144's nose dipped, and the 210-foot plane went into a dive.

As the 180-ton jet neared the ground, a piece of the right wing broke off. A tongue of flame gushed from the plane as it broke apart.

About a dozen houses were destroyed or badly damaged as torn metal, flaming engines and fuel rained on the town. Wreckage was scattered over a strip more than 100 yards wide, and some pieces landed in a nearby wheatfield.

Fabric from the plane's orange and blue interior was draped over utility lines, gateposts and red tile roofs. A section of wing knocked down part of a low wall around a school, and one huge metal part crushed a little cottage.

The experts said it would be a long time before the exact cause of the crash became known. Andre Turcat, a chief test pilot on the Concorde, said it was essential to find out what made the nose of the plane dip after the climb.

Observers in Moscow said the crash must have been a stunning blow to Soviet aviation officials and may have set the TU144 program back. The plane was scheduled to go into service in 1975.

The Soviet vice minister of aeronautical production, Vassili Kazakov, had told newsmen at the start of the show that unspecified problems remained to be solved.

Grossmiller Taking SFCC Staff Position

Col. William J. Grossmiller, 48, retired commander of the 351st Strategic Missile Wing at Whiteman Air Force Base, will assume the duties of director of business affairs at State Fair Community College beginning July 1, college president Fred Davis announced Monday.

Grossmiller will replace William B. Rabourn, who recently announced his resignation. Col. Charles W. Parker replaced Grossmiller in a change of command ceremony Friday at the base.

Grossmiller, besides serving as senior executive officer of the missile wing, has been an executive assistant to the deputy Chief of Staff, Air Force programs and resources. Much of his responsibility in that position included justification of the defense budget. He also has served in various middle management positions in aircraft and missile organizations: control, training, evaluation and standardization functions.

In addition to involvement of the management of personnel and capital assets of $564 million at Whiteman AFB, Grossmiller holds a bachelor of general education degree from the University of Omaha, Neb.; an M.S. degree in international affairs from George Washington University, Washington, D.C.; an M.A. degree in government and politics from the University of Maryland; and he has completed much of the course work toward his doctorate degree.

Grossmiller, his wife, Delores, and daughter will reside in Sedalia. They also have two other children in college and another who is married.

Davis said, "We are extremely fortunate to have a man of this caliber join the SFCC staff. His qualifications, both in education and experience in the area of budgeting and management, will be a real asset to the college."

Class Action Suits Increase In Number

WASHINGTON (AP) — In New Jersey, a class-action suit voided the contracts 24 customers had signed agreeing to pay $280 for home educational kits worth about $40.

For California home buyers, a class-action suit means a chance to earn interest on the tax escrow accounts required by the institutions holding their mortgages.

Drug companies accused of fixing prices, oil companies accused of levying excessive credit card finance charges and a door-to-door freezer salesman accused of defrauding his customers all have felt the sting of class-action consumer lawsuits.

The class action suit, filed under federal and state laws, permits those with a common claim to combine their interests and mount a suit which wouldn't have been worth the effort and legal fees if several separate suits were necessary.

Such suits constitute a small but growing proportion of legal cases nationwide.

"Class action is becoming more popular, but not necessarily more successful," said Mark Budnitz, an attorney with the National Consumer Law Center.

The number of class-action suits pending in federal courts at the end of last year was 3,500. Nearly half of them deal with civil rights, and in total they make up about 3 per cent of all federal civil cases. By comparison 25,000 personal injury cases were pending.

The American College of Trial Lawyers studied the Southern District of New York, the single largest adjudicator of federal class-action suits, and found the number filed annually increased nearly four times in five years.

In some cases class-action suits have become a victim of their own popularity, producing a mixed pattern of acceptance by courts.

Five states have approved laws permitting consumer class-action suits, according to the U.S. Office of Consumer Affairs. In 13 other states the restrictions on such suits have been eased.

But judges elsewhere have recoiled at the prospect of massive judgments.

The issue of paying interest on home mortgage tax escrow accounts, for example, was accepted as a class action in California, where the legislature has approved class-action bills dealing with consumer and environmental issues. A similar case was denied class-action status in the District of Columbia.

The federal Truth-in-Lending law fines offenders $100 for each instance of inadequate credit information disclosure. When lawyers sued Chemical Bank of New York on behalf of 130,000 charge card holders, the judge called the possible $13 million penalty a "horrendous, possibly annihilating punishment" and disallowed it as a class action. The Senate now is considering limiting liability to $50,000 or 1 per cent of a company's net worth for offenses against the lending act.

Another class-action case spent seven years bounding back and forth from district to appellate courts. The issue was whether an estimated six million persons could sue jointly to get back as much as $60 million they claimed they had been overcharged on stock commissions.

An appeals court finally declared the suit unmanageable as a class action and said: "Class actions have sprouted and multiplied like the leaves of the green bay tree."

Beverly C. Moore Jr., co-author of a Ralph Nader report on antitrust enforcement and now a public interest Washington lawyer, said the stock commission ruling means, "We are about to see the end of significant class actions."

Nathaniel Colley, the California lawyer arguing the rent escrow cases, said the decision "would in effect eliminate the intended effect of Rule 23." But Colley said the decision will not kill class action suits, particularly in the states.

Officials of the Pacific Legal Foundation, an arm of the California State Chamber of Commerce, have complained the state's class-action laws have led to harassment of business and the government. "I think California is going to start to tighten up its liberal approach to class action," said attorney Ronald A. Zumbun.

Tough Battles Facing Congress This Week

WASHINGTON (AP) — Tough battles involving differences between President Nixon and the legislative branch face Congress and its committees this week.

But they may be overshadowed by resumption Tuesday of Senate committee hearings on the Watergate burglary and bugging case.

Major House floor action is scheduled on a minimum wage bill, a presidential reorganization plan and a stop-the-bombing measure.

The Senate, after voting Tuesday afternoon on a fuel allocation program, will spend the rest of the week on a general farm bill.

The fuel bill would give the President more authority to deal with emergency shortages of petroleum products.

The farm measure, opposed by the administration, would set target prices for marketing of major farm products. The government would pay producers the difference between the target price and the selling price when the latter was lower.

The reorganization plan slated for a House vote Tuesday would centralize all drug enforcement agencies within the Justice Department. A divided Government Operations Committee has recommended that the proposal be defeated. The House vote will be on that recommendation.

The reorganization plan would go into effect on July 1 unless either branch of Congress rejects it before June 1.

The House hopes to vote Wednesday on a minimum wage increase bill. There is sharp disagreement over how many annual steps there should be to reach the top figure and disputes over expanding coverage.

Sometime during the week, the House expects to act on a Senate amendment to cut off all funds for U.S. military action in Indochina. The amendment was added to a House-passed appropriation bill that included a milder bombing ban.

A parliamentary roadblock could delay the House vote.

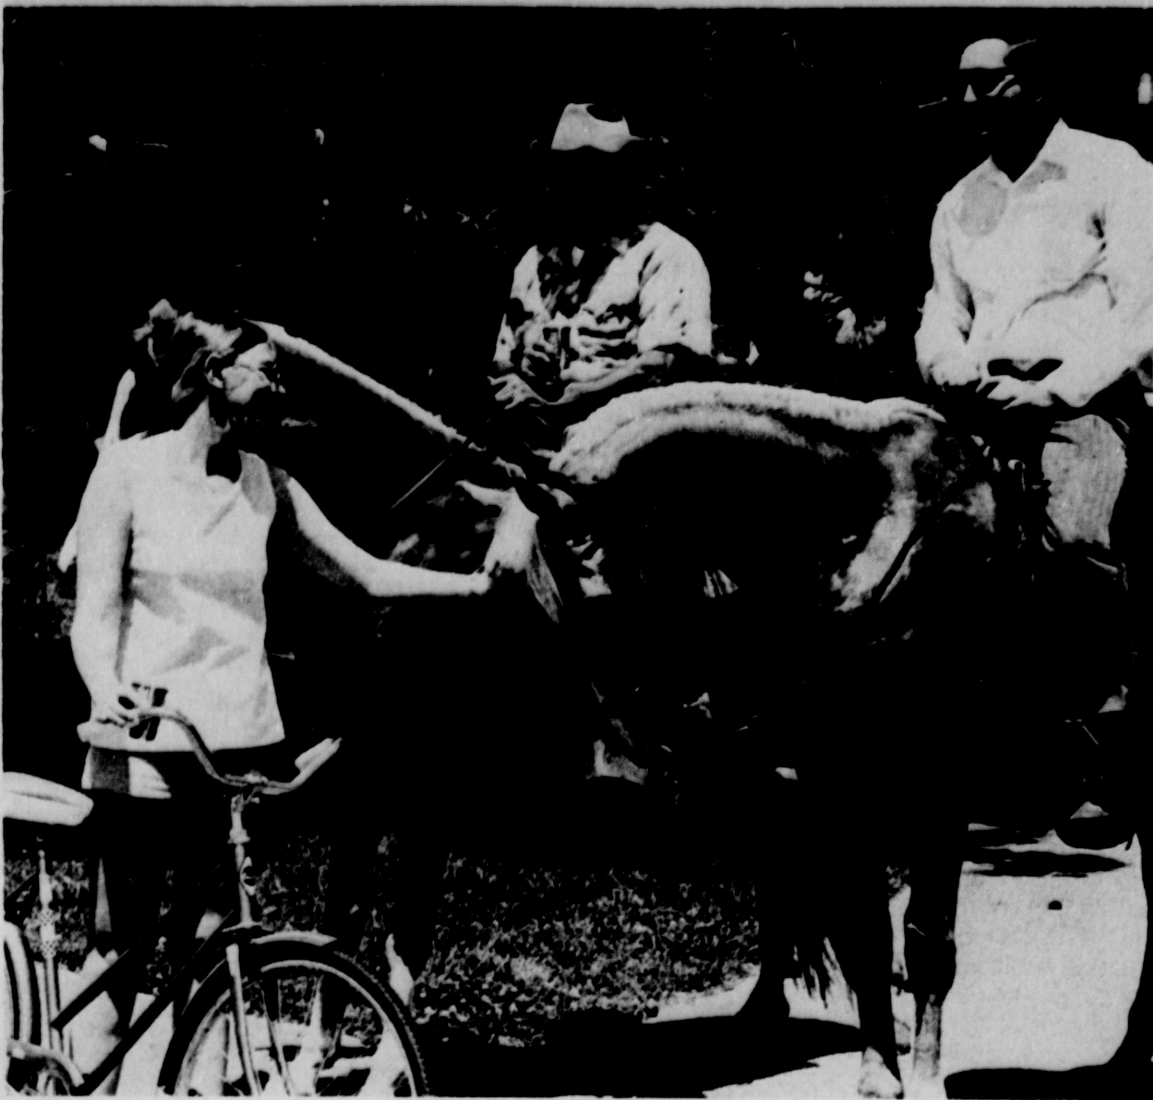

Search To Resume For Man Who Fell Into River

ST. JOSEPH, Mo. (AP) — Search operations were scheduled to resume in this area today for a Rulo, Neb., man who was reported missing after he fell in the Missouri River while fishing Sunday afternoon at Rulo.

The man, who has not been identified, fell into the river about 4:30 Sunday afternoon.

Included in Sunday's search were members of the Buchanan County sheriff's office, the U.S. Corps of Engineers and a cutter from the Coast Guard detachment at Atchison, Kan.

The battle-axe, a weapon used since primitive times, was originally made of stone.

Riders for Charity

Thirty-one bicycle riders plus several members of the State Fair Saddle Club participated in the Second Annual ESA Million Dollar Bike Ride Sunday afternoon at the fairgrounds. The cyclists rode for mileage while the horseback riders rode for time. A total of 876 bike miles were logged and, based upon the pledges received, the group expects to raise about $1100 from the event. All proceeds from the ride will go to the St. Jude Children's Research Hospital in Memphis, Tenn. In the photo above Terrie Volpp, 2802 Wing, stops to chat for a moment with John England, right, Route 2, and Bob Maxwell, Route 2, president of the saddle club.

Dollar Is In Trouble Again Because of Gold Worshipping

By JOHN CUNIFF
AP Business Analyst
NEW YORK (AP) — Through the years, gold seems to have held mankind in a trance. Once, it was worshipped as having come from the sun, or the heavens. Today it is worshipped by many as the only real financial security.

Because of this, the twice-devalued dollar is in trouble again. Dollars are being sold for gold; so, following the law of supply and demand, the dollar's price is being pressed down; the price of gold, pushed up.

Last week, it reached a price of more than $120 an ounce, up 25 per cent in just a month, as financial assets that were maintained in dollars were switched into gold. And, because of inflation, a lot of dollars are floating around.

Why this should be done isn't altogether explainable, but nothing about gold and its adherents ever is.

For example, there is plenty of evidence that gold buyers are speculating on an increased role for gold in the monetary system of the future, even though its relationship to currencies is officially severed. There are those who cannot believe that man can rid himself of ties to gold, and they may be right. Gold as a medium of exchange may be considered primitive, but it remains universally acceptable.

The current interpretation of the rising gold price is that the United States' economy continues to suffer from inflation, notwithstanding promises from Washington about the future. And the country still imports more than it exports.

This is bad news for those who traditionally have held dollars for security. All over the world, the dollar was thought to be the safest, untainted by the erosion that ruined other currencies.

But dollar erosion today is very serious. And gold never erodes. No government or industry or institution can do anything to diminish the amount of gold somebody has cached away. And it is almost impervious to nature.

Talk among economists now is of an upcoming recession following the current boom. William McChesney Martin Jr., former head of the Federal Reserve Board, is among the latest to express this opinion.

Moreover, Martin fed additional fears with his statement to the Senate Finance Committee that "the nation is floating on a sea of debt" and that he was worried about the banking system.

Martin is highly respected in world monetary and financial circles, and his comments are bound to be used abroad as reinforcement of their own concerns. And among those concerns about America is its current government.

In the view of some Europeans, President Nixon's ability to govern has been impaired seriously at the very time that the price and payments balance situations need close supervision from Washington.

Oil Agreement Signed With Farmer Cooperative

HOUSTON (AP) — Houston oilman John Mecom Sr., says he has made a 10-year $350 million oil agreement with a farmer cooperative that could lead to a revival of independent oil drilling in the United States.

Mecom told the Houston Chronicle in a copyrighted story Sunday that he will get $5.50 for oil that he has been selling for $2.50 to $3 per barrel.

Mecom said his agreement with the American Grain and Cattle Corp., a huge San Antonio cooperative, opens a new market, with higher prices, for independent oil producers and will encourage them to drill more wells.

"There's lots of oil waiting to be discovered in the United States," Mecom said. "Independent operators, who discovered most of the fields that we now have, quit drilling because production costs rose so much and the price of oil remained so low that the operators could not get back their investments."

Mecom told the Chronicle he had received calls from farm cooperatives and oil retailers throughout the country which wanted to buy his production.

"I'm sure that this new type of arrangement is going to result in a big revival of oil drilling by independents," Mecom said.

Mecom said he would process the crude through a refining operation he is now negotiating and the cooperative would receive the major products such as gasoline, diesel fuel and liquid gases.

Harold Nelson, president of American Grain and Cattle, first announced the deal. He said his company had made a firm offer to buy all the oil production for 10 years from Mecom, who has one of the few big independent oil reserves in the nation.

Mecom's production is mainly from the Lake Washington field south of New Orleans, which is now yielding 25,000 barrels per day. Mecom said he is now drilling three new wells at Lake Washington and will start three others within the next few weeks.

Mecom said in addition to selling crude oil to the farmer cooperative, he anticipates selling about 150 cubic feet of natural gas daily from the field.

Justifiable Homicide Indicated by Official

CHARLESTON, Mo. (AP) — The fatal shooting of a 23-year-old East Prairie man will probably be ruled justifiable homicide, a Mississippi County sheriff's spokesman said Sunday.

Deputy Sheriff Michael Baughman said Dewey Zook, who died Saturday in a hospital at Memphis, Tenn., was shot in the forehead two days earlier.

Witnesses, according to Baughman, said Zook threatened the life of Dennis Johnston, 26, who then obtained a .22 caliber rifle and shot him. The shooting occurred in East Prairie.

Pot-Smoking Wife Became Indifferent

Dear Ann Landers: I've seen many letters in your column from teen-agers who smoke pot, but I don't recall ever having seen a letter from a pot-smoking housewife. There must be thousands, Ann, but maybe they don't write. I might be the first.

Our four children are between the ages of three and ten. My husband and I are in the middle-income bracket — perhaps higher. We live in the suburbs and he makes about $20,000 a year. I started to smoke pot after our last baby was born. At first, it relaxed me. It seemed as if I were looking at the world through rose-colored glasses. I was sure pot was the greatest thing since sliced bread. It minimized my problems and helped me cope with my children.

My husband didn't approve of pot but he never ordered me to quit using it. I should tell you I bought the stuff from a neighbor for $10 a lid. She said she started to smoke to get off booze. (Incidentally, the poor girl appears stoned most of the time and people think she still drinks.)

About six months ago my husband told me I was beginning to behave like my neighbor. I have to admit I staggered around a lot and my memory knocked out. But worst of all, I was unsure of myself behind the wheel of a car. My perception of distance and time were distorted and I tried to fake it. Finally, after I had a minor accident, my husband laid down the law — NO MORE POT.

I haven't touched a joint in six months but I am still not back to normal. I get headaches (which I never had before) and I feel slightly detached. But I'm determined to become my old self again and face life's problems with whatever inner resources I can muster. No more copping out. Please print this for all my sisters who are where I was seven months ago. — Ex-Head In Houston

Dear Ex: The major thrust of your story is that pot didn't solve your problems, it merely dulled your senses so you didn't care about them. Early, you believed pot helped you to cope, but actually it made you indifferent.

From the beginning I have been opposed to the legalization of marijuana and I will continue to fight it. Letters like yours substantiate the earlier judgments. Thanks for writing.

Dear Ann Landers: Please say something about the mentally twisted people who buy police radios and listen by the hour, hoping to beat the police to the scene of the crime or a tragedy. Does this satisfy a sick craving for excitement or does it give them a feeling of superiority? Whatever it is, it's an awful thing which I can't understand. Furthermore, they are a nuisance. These weirdos push themselves in front and often hinder the work of the police, doctors, ambulance personnel, firemen and so on.

Please give me some insight as to why anyone would enjoy seeing a mangled body, a house on fire or a robber or a police officer with a bullet in his head? — Can't Figure It In Madison existence. And perhaps the feeling of importance that comes from being on the scene when something sensational is happening.

Dear Madison: Why? Morbid curiosity. A sick thrill. Boredom with one's own humdrum

"Twisted" is an apt

description for people who have nothing better to do for entertainment. They are to be pitied.

Man Likes Column, Sends in Pointer

By POLLY CRAMER

DEAR POLLY — I am a man who wants to tell you that your column is not just read by the ladies. I find so many helpful things in it that I seldom miss reading it. Now I would like to pass something on to the other readers. When cleaning windows and mirrors it is sometimes hard to find a lint-free cloth and one goes through a lot of paper towels if the job is a big one. Wad up a piece of newspaper, wipe the glass and find you have the best thing ever. This is a good way to make use of those papers. They certainly leave no lint on the glass. Thanks and keep up the good work. — BRUCE

Thanks for your nice letter, Bruce. We are more than delighted that so many men read the column. Keep those letters coming. — POLLY

Polly's Problem

DEAR POLLY — While we were cleaning prior to moving into a recently purchased home we noticed the finish on the bathtub and lavatory is eaten away and they are very rough and gray looking. Is there any paint on the market that we can spray or brush on that will make them look better until we can afford replacements? — MRS. D. G. R.

DEAR POLLY — My Pet Peeves are my cat-loving neighbors who let their cats use our garden as a litter box. They do not seem to care that this gets on our vegetables and soils our hands and shoes. Outside of poison for these cats, or better still for these cat lovers, how can we discourage the varmints from contaminating our property? I hope some reader has found an effective solution and will let us know. — ROGER

DEAR POLLY — Do tell Katherine that my mother, also a Katherine, has crocheted many rugs of yarn and nylon. To keep them from slipping and sliding on the floor she hand stitches a piece of denim the size of the rug over its underneath side. (Polly's note — Burlap is sometimes used for this, too.) This backing also keeps the rug from curling and getting out of shape. — LINDA

DEAR POLLY — It is often necessary to raise the neckline of some low-cut dresses. I sew a pretty button on each side of the V about two inches from the point. Make a "frog" with yarn which blends or contrasts with the material. Thin yarn could be made stronger by doing a string of single crochet. Sew frog securely around one button and form a loop for the other one. The space between can be filled in with a rose, medallion or bit of braid or lace. — MRS. K. F. B.

Dollar Continues Its Fall On European Markets

LONDON (AP) — The U.S. dollar fell sharply in Europe as money markets reopened today, extending last week's fall to record lows. Gold jumped to a new high of $120.75 an ounce here. In Frankfurt, the dollar dropped to 2.6540 West German marks, a new low there, down from 2.6740 marks Friday. Dealers said trading was extremely nervous. The mark is one of the strongest currencies in Western Europe and when the dollar is in trouble there it is usually weak elsewhere. The U.S. currency also dropped steeply in London, Zurich and Paris.

Wildcat Strike Affects United Telephone Service

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) — United Telephone Co. said today a wildcat strike which started Friday morning at Monette, Ark., has spread to several other facilities in Missouri. Al Carroll, public relations manager, said a dispute over the naming of a senior lineman at Monette touched off an unauthorized walkout. He said some members of the Communications Workers of America complained the promotion should have gone to a person with more seniority. Carroll said the company promoted the man it thought was best qualified. The walkout spread to Missouri plants at Rolla Friday afternoon and at Warrensburg this morning. Also affected are plant, traffic and commercial operations at Clinton and Maryville. No estimate was available on the total number of employees off the job, but the company said operations were hampered and management personnel were filling in.

County, City To Discuss Tax Situation

How the city will obtain its tax records from the county will be the topic of discussion for city and county officials at a meeting at 10 a.m. Tuesday at the county court judges' chambers at the Pettis County Courthouse. Officials scheduled to attend the meeting are Sedalia Mayor Jerry Jones, City Collector Opal Hugelman, City Counselor Bob Fritz, County Prosecutor Gary Fleming and the three Pettis County Court judges. In the past, the city has paid $4,600 a year for Trotter to make a duplicate copy of assessment books involving real estate and personal property in the city. But a dispute between the county and Trotter over who should receive the money — the county treasurer or Trotter — has prompted Trotter to state that the books will be compiled for the city only after the issue is settled. The matter is presently in Pettis County Circuit Court. The county filed a civil suit against Trotter April 30 to collect $3,650 which the assessor allegedly owes the county in fees he received for compiling Sedalia's tax assessment records for the 1971-72 fiscal year.

Astronauts Await Word On Repairs

SPACE CENTER, Houston (AP) — With prospects for a space walk to free a jammed solar panel "looking pretty good," Skylab's astronauts today awaited word on how they might do the tricky job. Making the panel operable could nearly double the electricity in their power-starved space station. If the space agency gives the green light for the excursion, decisions on who will make the walk and how the one-ton panel will be released will be up to Skylab commander Charles Conrad Jr., who became the world's champion of space flight in total hours logged on Sunday. "I suspect the commander would want to go out himself," Skylab mission director William C. Schneider told newsmen Sunday. Capsule communicator Storey Musgrove told the spacemen late Sunday, "Things are looking pretty good for a space walk later in the week." He said mission control today would pass up suggested procedures for the attempt and all aspects would be discussed in a conference Tuesday between the control center and the astronauts. "We aim to please," Conrad replied. "We're more than happy to do anything we can." Schneider said space agency officials planned a day-long meeting today at the Marshall Space Flight Center, Huntsville, Ala., to discuss the potential for success and dangers involved in the space walk repair job. They'll also discuss the possibility of extending the scheduled 28-day mission as much as 10 days to make up experiments lost because of low power. "This is a very desirable thing to do, but we don't want to take a chance with our crew," the director said of the space walk. "The prime consideration will be: Is it a safe thing to do?" Schneider said the salvage attempt could come as early as Wednesday but there will be no hurry because "we'd rather do it right than rushed." While ground experts wrestled with the panel problem, Conrad, Dr. Joseph P. Kerwin and Paul J. Weitz scheduled medical, earth resources and solar astronomy experiments today, their 11th day in space. Conrad passed the world space time record at 1:17 a.m. EDT Sunday. The mark had been set by former astronaut James A. Lovell, a four-time space veteran. Conrad previously flew on Gemini 5 and 11 and on Apollo 12. He became the third man to step on the moon. Lovell's record was 715 hours, 5 minutes. If Skylab 1 goes the distance, Conrad will top that by almost 18 days.

News Sessions On Watergate Are Requested

STATELINE, Nev. (AP) — The nation's governors launched their annual conference today with Republicans and Democrats calling on President Nixon to hold news conferences on the Watergate scandal. Although Watergate seemed unlikely to come before the 65th annual bipartisan conference that runs through Wednesday, it dominated news conferences, interviews and many informal conversations Sunday at this gambling resort on the shore of Lake Tahoe. Federal-state fiscal relations constitute the major business before the conference, but a rule requiring a three-fourths majority for resolutions seemed certain to doom a Democratic bid to put the meeting on record Wednesday against President Nixon's economic and revenue-sharing policies. Partisan meetings, a breakfast for the Republicans and a luncheon for the Democrats, were major activities today. Gov. Wendell Ford of Kentucky was expected to be elected chairman of the Democratic governors. Gov. Linwood Holton of Virginia, chairman of the Republican Governors Association, suggested the series of presidential press conferences about Watergate. Holton, appearing on NBC's "Meet the Press," said the conferences would permit cross-examination of Nixon on his contention he was unaware of, or uninvolved in, any coverup of Watergate by his top aides. The suggestion was endorsed promptly by Robert S. Strauss, chairman of the Democratic National Committee; Maryland Gov. Marvin Mandel, a Democrat and the current chairman of the National Governors Conference; and Gov. Daniel J. Evans of Washington, a Republican expected to be elected Wednesday as conference chairman for the next year. Holton said: "If he will go before the press, not once but a number of times, ... and clarify the ambiguities as they developed, the President ... has the opportunity to regain the complete confidence of the American people." Nixon's last press conference in March preceded the bulk of the Watergate revelations implicating top administration officials. Strauss, meeting with reporters here, said: "Nothing would serve this nation better than an immediate, full-scale, open, long-lasting press conference on the part of the President." He said he has found, in touring the country, "a desperate desire of the people to have some touch with the President" and "getting canned statements by lawyers doesn't satisfy them." He was referring to a 4,000-word statement issued by Nixon on Watergate two weeks ago. Conference officials said they expected attendance by all but four of the 50 state governors: Republicans Otis Bowen of Indiana and William T. Cahill of New Jersey and Democrats Reubin Askew of Florida and Sherman Tribbett of Delaware.

Road Employees Ask County For Wage Increase

The Pettis County court is considering a request by employees of the county road department for a 50-cent hourly wage increase and an extra week of paid vacation, the three court judges said Monday. Presiding Judge Harry Walch said members of the road department made the request Friday morning at the judges' chambers. Walch said the court will send the employees an offer of settlement "within the next day or two." The court would not speculate on the terms of any contract, but indicated that it probably could not raise the employees' salaries by 50 cents out of present general revenue. The 11 county road employees now earn from $2.21 to $2.70 cents an hour, according to records. Most earn $2.60 cents an hour. Walch said County Engineer Ed Hall, supervisor of the road department, was not involved in the employees' action. The presiding judge also indicated that the employees did not threaten a work slowdown or stoppage if their requests were not met. Walch said the employees simply told the court that their wages were not adequate. A spokesman for the employees was not available for comment Monday. The group reportedly returned to work Friday after making the request and was reported to be working Monday.

Voter Drive To Stop In Two Towns

County residents living near LaMonte and Green Ridge will get a chance to register to vote this week when the Pettis County clerk's office comes to those towns to facilitate county-wide voter registration. County Clerk Mrs. Mary Jane Wilson said she will be registering voters from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. Wednesday at the LaMonte City Hall and from the same hours Friday at the Green Ridge Chamber of Commerce building. Pettis County voters last November approved county-wide voter registration. County Clerk Mrs. Mary Jane Wilson said she will be registering voters from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. Wednesday at the LaMonte City Hall and from the same hours Friday at the Green Ridge Chamber of Commerce building. Pettis County voters last November approved county-wide voter registration. All persons who do not live in Sedalia and are not presently registered to vote must do so in the near future. Sedalia has voter registration. Mrs. Wilson emphasized that persons who register to vote should know their township. The voter registration drive recently made its first stop in Smithton.

Man Bound Over For Murder Trial

(Democrat-Capital Service)
LEXINGTON, Neb. — Jimmy Ray Anderson, 29, Oxnard, Calif., was bound over for trial on a first-degree murder charge after a preliminary hearing in Dawson County Court here Thursday, a spokesman for the Dawson County Sheriff's department told The Democrat-Capital. Anderson and his wife, Terry, 24, are accused of shooting Nebraska Trooper George Amos on April 20 on Interstate 80 west of here. The Andersons had operated a photography studio in Sedalia last summer and were free on $1,000 bond each, on stealing charges filed in Pettis County Magistrate Court, at the time of the shooting. A sheriff's spokesman said Mrs. Anderson's preliminary hearing is scheduled for June 13. The spokesman added that separate hearing dates were set after the court appointed her a separate attorney. Both were previously represented by one Lexington attorney. No trial date in Dawson County District Court was set for Anderson, the spokesman said. The Andersons remain in the Dawson County jail here without bond, the spokesman said. Amos, 28, was shot in the face with his own service revolver after stopping a car which he reported was traveling erratically. Amos' .357 magnum was found in the Andersons' possession after their car was stopped following a chase that ended in a field when the fleeing vehicle was rammed by a Patrol car, according to the Nebraska Patrol. Prospects for early, clear-cut progress are nil. But the ministers hope to find out if the members want to work out a common stand before mid-September when the world's major industrial non-Communist countries begin trade talks in Tokyo. The French have taken a comparatively firm stand toward future trade negotiations, while other market members favor greater flexibility. Among the policies Paris is pushing are: — Preservation of the joint farm program of high price supports. Britain and some of the other market members are less than enthusiastic about the farm program, since it benefits the French farmers the most. The United States would like to see negotiations allowing easier entry of U.S. agricultural products to the Common Market. — Continuation of the present common tariff wall set up by the original six market members, West Germany, France, Italy, Luxembourg, the Netherlands and Belgium. The three new members — Britain, Ireland and Denmark — are adjusting to the barrier. — Return to what France thinks is a more orderly international monetary system, including provisions making the dollar convertible into gold or some other acceptable asset. One firm decision expected from today's consultations is an invitation to nearly 50 underdeveloped countries, most of them former European colonies, to go to Brussels on July 25 for talks about associate membership in the market. Police Court

The following persons were charged with being intoxicated in public: Frank Flippin, 312 North Grand, case dismissed; George Payton, 340 West Saline, forfeited $25. David Buckler, Jamestown, speeding, forfeited $20. Violet Randall, 1110 East Seventh, driving while intoxicated, forfeited $100. Hurshel F. Marti, Fifth and Lamine, failure to yield the right of way, fined $5. Waymond Merriott, Kansas City, Kan., disorderly conduct, case dismissed. The conviction May 25 of Peter August Bergman, Ottaville, on a charge of disorderly conduct, was set aside on a motion presented in Bergman's behalf by attorney James Rice.

Two Accidents Injure Four West of City

Two separate accidents on Main Street Road resulted in injuries to four persons Sunday and Monday, according to State Highway Patrol spokesmen. Three Smithton youths suffered numerous injuries at 8:10 a.m. Monday when the car in which they were riding went out of control on the road, four miles west of Sedalia. Injured, according to the Patrol, were the driver, Dava Marcelle Hampton, 18, who suffered severe facial contusions and bruises about the body; her brother, Cecil, 17, who sustained possible internal injuries; and David Hockett, 15, who suffered possible neck and spinal injuries. The injured were all admitted to Bothwell Hospital where their conditions were listed as "satisfactory" by a hospital spokesman. A Patrol spokesman said the accident occurred when Miss Hampton lost control of her vehicle while approaching a curve and the car overturned. No arrests were made in connection with the incident. The 1964 Dodge was totally demolished, according to the patrol. The second incident occurred at approximately 5:50 p.m. Sunday on the road, about 3.8 miles west of Highway 50. Injured was Mrs. Dorothy Mitchell, 31, 241 West Saline, who was listed in fair condition Monday recovering from a neck injury, a hospital spokesman said. The Patrol said the Mitchell woman, driving a 1970 Plymouth west on the gravel road, lost control of the vehicle, skidded into a ditch and overturned.

Common Market Officials Meet On Policies

LUXEMBOURG (AP) — Common Market foreign ministers began meeting here today to try to unify their policies for the "Nixon round" of trade talks beginning this fall. Prospects for early, clear-cut progress are nil. Balance of Influence Is Studied

By LOUIS HARRIS

A substantial 69 per cent of the American people agree with the statement that "large corporations have a great deal of influence" in Washington these days, which stands in dramatic contrast to only 7 per cent who say "the average citizen" has comparable access to capital decision-makers.

Extensive probing by survey interviewers reveals that the average citizen is quite convinced that corporations, financial institutions and organized labor exert influence in Washington far outweighing that of consumerists, women's rights organizations, or environmentalists. Another striking finding is the 31 per cent of the public who agree with the statement that "organized crime has a great deal of influence in Washington."

The influence chart in the nation's capital is not at all the same as people feel it should be nor do those with the most influence enjoy the highest levels of public confidence. For example, no more than 27 per cent of the public express a "great deal of confidence" in the way large corporations are being handled, although 69 per cent perceive them as enjoying a "great deal of influence" in Washington.

For example, no more than 27 per cent of the public express a "great deal of confidence" in the way large corporations are being handled, although 69 per cent perceive them as enjoying a "great deal of influence" in Washington.

Washington.

By contrast, 60 per cent express high confidence in consumer advocate Ralph Nader, although no more than 24 per cent of the people feel he has major influence in Washington. Women's rights groups are greatly respected by 56 per cent of the public, but no more than 7 per cent feel they have "a great deal of influence" at the federal level. Farmers are viewed with high regard by 61 per cent of the people, but only 20 per cent see them as exerting important influence in Washington.

The pattern for big business is essentially repeated in the case of organized labor. A substantial 58 per cent of the public feels that top trade union leadership has high influence in Washington, although no more than 15 per cent of the public express "a great deal of confidence in the men running labor unions."

It is apparent from these results that the public sees the influence of big business and big labor in Washington as being far out of proportion to public confidence in them. Unquestionably, this feeling has been heightened by public anger over rising prices, which people believe stem in large measure from business raising prices and unions making demands for wage increases.

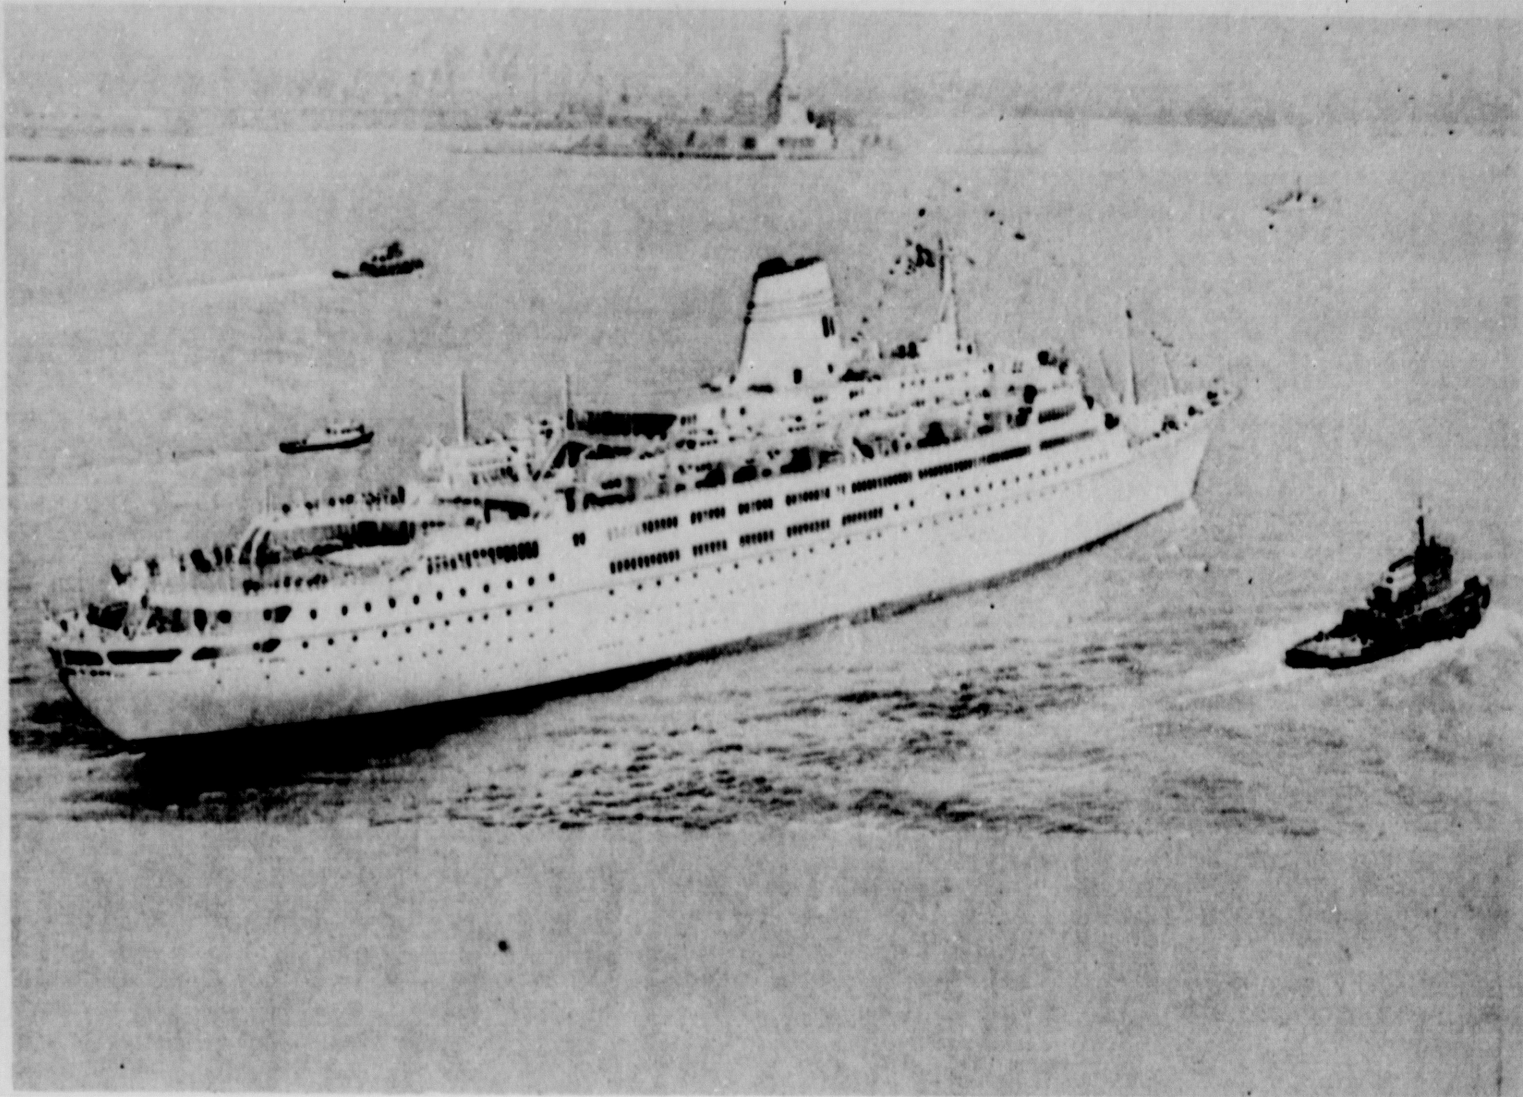

The fact that 61 per cent of the public believes that criminal elements have penetrated the federal government points up how far the public is disillusioned about the "wrong" kind of pressures in the capital. Previous studies have shown that 78 per cent believe there is indeed a "Mafia" in this country, and 6 in 10 apparently now believe that important politicians are at least partially controlled or influenced by the mob.

Back of these results lies a sense that money is one of the real roots of the trouble in Washington today. The groups which are believed more likely to have access to large sums of money are those such as big business or organized labor, in contrast to women's rights groups, environmentalists, or "the average citizen."

Probably the most significant result of the entire survey is the low degree of influence which the public feels the "average citizen" has in Washington today. When 62 per cent feel they have "hardly any" or "almost no" influence in the running of their government, then disenchantment is at worrisome levels. Clearly, the American people no longer believe the democratic system is expressing the interests and wishes of the general public.

Certainly one of the major tasks in reestablishing confidence in the federal establishment is to give the people themselves a greater sense that what they think really matters in Washington. One way to accomplish that, the people appear to be saying, is to constrain the power of those groups which have unusual access to large sums of money.

Many Blasted During Second Democratic Days

HANNIBAL, Mo. (AP) — The role of the White House in the Watergate scandal, the impoundment of federal funds and the pressuring of the news media was assailed Saturday during the state's second Democratic Days celebration.

Actions on the part of President Richard M. Nixon, asserted Sen. Birch Bayh of Indiana, keynote speaker, represent attempts to compromise the safeguards of the American political system.

Others joining in criticism of the President included Sens. Stuart Symington and Thomas F. Eagleton of Missouri and Rep. James W. Symington, the senator's son.

Sen. Symington said he disagrees with special Watergate prosecutor Archibald Cox's contention that Senate hearings into the June, 1972 Watergate scandal may compromise possible convictions.

The result of the investigation, Symington said, however, may be more cooperation on the part of the President with members of the Congress.

Rep. Symington said he would prefer not to consider impeachment of the President because of the "ripple effect it might produce."

Eagleton cited mail he has received reflecting a "distinct loss of confidence by the people in the quality of government they are getting."

Since the assassination of the late John F. Kennedy in 1963, Eagleton contended, "things have gone downhill" in American political life.

Bayh, however, said the nation's political system still works because of the efforts on the part of the media to ferret out the facts in such instances as the Watergate break-in.

The political editor of the Quincy, Ill., Herald-Whig, Will W. Davis, 55, was appointed executive director of the Missouri State Democratic Committee.

State Democratic Chairman David Donnelly said Davis, who was director of the Missouri Tourism Commission from 1967 until 1969, will direct a committee staff in "new directions based on traditional strengths of the Missouri Democratic Party."

Davis, who is 55, was also former news secretary to former Gov. Warren E. Hearnes.

Veteran K.C. Broadcaster Found Dead

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Veteran Kansas City broadcaster Jim Monroe was found dead Sunday afternoon at his home here. He was 56 and had been in ill health several months.

Monroe's career here began in 1940 when he joined KCKN as a radio newsman. He joined KCMO a year later to head the station's news department. He was later named news director of KCMO-TV and Radio, and remained in that capacity until 1961 when he became director of public affairs for the station.

He received many awards during his career, including a Sigma Delta Chi service award for radio reporting of the 1951 Kansas City flood. And while he was news director the station received the distinguished achievement award of the Radio-Television Directors Association for 1957 coverage of the Ruskin Heights tornado. He was named "Broadcaster of the Year" in 1964 by the Radio and Television Council of Greater Kansas City.

Monroe suffered 35 years with acromegaly—a disease of the pituitary gland. He had retired from KCMO in December because of his health.

Born in Glasgow, Mo., he was raised near Fayette, where he graduated from Central College. He received a master's degree in speech from Northwestern University.

Lawrence Lamb, M.D.

Victims Intolerant To Many Food Items

Dear Dr. Lamb — Your series on low blood sugar was great. Your suggestion about adding roughage to the meals was unknown to me but seems to be a real help.

Sometime when you're discussing it I wish you would consider the fact that some of these people with low blood sugar have a genuine intolerance for certain protein foods especially. Not all but some. Do you find this to be true and is it related to the general picture or just a second complicating condition that one sees at times with the hypoglycemia? The intolerances are usually multiple and include milk, cereals, legumes, etc.

Dear Reader — I receive a number of good letters from doctors, such as yourself. They contain important public information. I hope to include such information from other doctors when possible.

It's certainly true that some of the people who suffer from low blood sugar attacks do not tolerate other foods well. Many of these people have multiple problems in absorption from the digestive tract. This can affect milk tolerance, particularly if they have trouble splitting and absorbing the double milk sugar lactose. It might be difficult to establish that this was due to the proteins in some of the foods or whether they were associated with other elements that are common in certain protein foods such as the milk sugar in milk. It is also true that some people don't tolerate soybean and soybean products well and find them to be gas formers.

Some individuals who have low blood sugar also have stomach acidity with their attacks and generalized digestive complaints. As an initial approach, eliminating sweets, and in severe cases eliminating milk and cereals (both of which are sometimes troublesome in terms of absorption and digestion) and sticking to lean meats, poultry, fish, and natural vegetables with plenty of roughage is helpful. After the problem has been controlled, by individual experimentation one can find what foods are best tolerated. Some individuals who do not tolerate cereals may have some intolerance to the gluten protein common in all cereals except rice and corn.

Dear Dr. Lamb — I'm a 16-year-old female and have syphilis. I'm having treatment, and also started work at a V.D. clinic. The reason I'm writing is because there are hundreds of people who have V.D. and don't know it. I would like to say if you think you might have V.D. go to your doctor, or better, go to a V.D. clinic, there are a lot of them. Venereal disease doesn't just get teens. V.D. doesn't play favorites. V.D. can infect at any age. The youngest person in our clinic was 11 and the oldest was 53. I read an article about an 80-year-old man who got syphilis. If you're over 30 don't think you can't get V.D., because you can.

Please print this letter because I want everybody to know about this disease.

Dear Reader — Thank you for trying to help other people. You're absolutely right. V.D. does not play favorites in terms of age, religion, sex, race, wealth or social position. Having intimate relations with others, regardless of their social standing or other aspects, raises the possibility of venereal disease, unless both partners are free of disease and are not engaging in activities with anyone else. I also agree with your recommendation that anyone who has any reason to think they might have venereal disease should seek an examination from a V.D. clinic or through the county or city health office.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The witness sits at a little table surrounded on three sides by irreverent reporters and curious spectators.

Nine inquisitors face the witness across their own monstrous old-wood table barricading them from the rest of the cavernous Caucus Room.

The system, being used now by the Senate Select Committee on Presidential Campaign Activities—the Watergate committee—has been known to trip the unwary and grind down the righteous.

But so far, most witnesses have emerged intact from the hearings, which resume Tuesday after a week-long recess. Although the TV-watchers may not have known exactly what to expect, the senators and committee staff have had few surprises.

"The senators are fully informed as to what a witness can testify to," said Samuel Dash, the committee's chief counsel who opens the questioning after each witness is sworn.

Dash's three assistants divided up the witnesses according to the first three phases of the hearings.

Jim Hamilton is handling the Watergate affair; Terry Lenzner is working on political espionage and sabotage, the "dirty tricks" phase; and David Dorsen is handling the witnesses who will testify about campaign contributions and how the President's re-election committee got its money.

The three men seek out potential witnesses, arrange interviews with them through their lawyers and meet—always unannounced and behind closed doors—with those they think might be worth calling before the committee itself.

Lawyers representing the Republican minority and other members of the committee staff usually join in the interviews, and senators themselves

Policemen Killed In Disturbance

LEAVENWORTH, Kan. (AP) — An investigation is continuing into Saturday night's disturbance in north Leavenworth in which three policemen were injured.

Police said Patrolman Dan E. Hubbell called for assistance after making a routine traffic arrest. When officers answered the call they were targets of verbal abuse from blacks.

Police said Hubbell was jumped and kicked as he chased a man down an alley. They said the officer's gun was taken away from him. Hubbell was hospitalized with fractures of the jaw and nose and internal injuries.

Sgt. Edward E. East was treated for facial cuts and released.

Sgt. Ralph Wilkerson was struck on the head and face, and was treated for cuts on the ear and arm and a bruised eye.

Four men were held pending further investigation.

Sheriff's deputies and members of the highway patrol were assisting in patrolling the city.

Business executive of the 'new breed'

Whether he is representative of a new breed of corporation president or is a lone "maverick," businessman Jay Monroe delivered some interesting comments recently to the New Enterprise Club of the Harvard Business School.

"We have to break with the maximizing - of - efficiency tradition," said Monroe, president of the Tensor Corp. "The concept that all is fair in the pursuit of increased earnings per share is dangerous and simplistic... The whole world could explode."

He clamped down particularly hard on "MBA-type" (master of business administration) thinking which, he alleges, equates success with profits.

To Monroe, "success is measured by a company being in a sufficiently good position to be able to innovate." But formalized business tradition, he claims, discourages innovation.

"I am not putting down profit per se," said Monroe. "But there are other things to be derived from a company apart from building profits for stockholders."

As far as stockholders are concerned, "I don't feel any obligation towards them, apart from complying with Securities Exchange Commission regulations as they relate to sales of an initial issue... If they still choose to invest, then that's their business."

"I don't think one owes even that much, however, to the subsequent investors because they didn't invest in the company, they simply bought the stock from somebody else. If they're not satisfied with their investment, they can sell it. They're just in it for the ride."

If it was going to cost, say, 30 cents a share to invest in antipollution equipment for example, Monroe would advise his stockholders of this, but would also tell them that "they owe it to society to improve the environment."

This kind of corporate thinking is refreshing, and maybe a little courageous. (NEA)

Those $100 bills corrupt the system

WASHINGTON — You don't have to be superstitious these days, or believe in voodoo, to entertain the notion that there is some curse surrounding the $100 bill.

Rowan

ing their children to drift in the cruel world of leftover tragedy.

A Marylander who wants to be a full-term congressman knows he needs money to win the election. He gets his predecessor congressman to arrange for a loan of 250 $100 bills from the Committee for the Re-election of the President. Somehow that $25,000 never got reported, as Maryland law requires, and its actual usage was questioned in the press. Shortly thereafter the congressman was found dead — apparently as a result of a self-inflicted shotgun blast into the chest.

A New York attorney abandons his lucrative practice to lead a campaign to elect the President of the United States. He rides high as the President's chief political adviser and as the attorney general of the United States. But he gets involved in setting up appointments for a suspected swindler who has just given 2,000 $100 bills to the Committee for the Re-election of the President. He winds up under federal indictment and his wife perilously close to a nervous breakdown as she tries to cope with impending personal calamity.

Those $100 bills have cast a curse on so many others that we know about: the former commerce secretary who solicited most of them; the burglars who carried them on what they say they thought was a mission of patriotism; the lawyers who took them in payment for the defense of the burglars.

And, like some strangely modern witchcraft, those $100 bills will claim more victims as new indictments unfold over "hush money," payments for political sabotage, and just maybe a few people who put some surplus $100 bills in their private pockets without informing Internal Revenue.

George Bernard Shaw, with typical disrespect for the Bible, once said, "Lack of money is the root of all evil." But the seemingly endless train of death, family destruction, political calamity flowing out of Watergate would suggest that for politicians a SURPLUS of money is an invitation to self-destruction.

Or, considering our present stupid system of financing our most important elections, the rule might be, "A sufficiency of money is ipso facto evidence of unsuitability for office." Even several Democrats, who didn't have anything close to enough money, had to sell themselves to an assortment of devils, especially during ridiculously costly primaries.

The Republicans had a surplus of $100 bills — and it would take a week to list all the donations that bespeak a frightening disregard for simple propriety, let alone a worry about prosecution under the laws of bribery.

Democracy is going to die and take a resting place among some of the tragic figures mentioned above if we do not lift this society above the curse of the secret $100 bill.

Mrs. E. Howard Hunt is the wife who died with $10,000 in her handbag, while on a mission to help a family left tumbling in the storm by the arrest and indictment of her secret-agent husband.

William Mills was the congressman for whom the shotgun blast was supposed to pre-empt a scandal over $25,000.

John Mitchell is the indicted former attorney general, Maurice Stans the former commerce secretary — and the others cursed by those $100 bills are too numerous to name.

But don't you suspect that if they all could, or would, talk they would tell the nation to rescue the political system from the grip of the big-money dispensers?

Might they not say that, when ambassadorships are for sale for $300,000 and some protection from prison is given for $200,000 (provided it is secret and in cash), a lot of people and a potentially great nation are bound to be hurt?

As this incredible Watergate drama unfolds, with all its cloak-and-dagger sleaziness, keep an eye on the $100 bills. Keep a receptive eye, ear and heart open for sane new proposals for financing presidential elections.

The $1 income-tax checkoff was a bomb. Whether it might have worked with real support from the administration and the IRS is debatable.

The ultimate answer may be that Congress must appropriate adequate funds for legitimate candidates, forbidding them to take gifts from the assorted hustlers who cover this town the way chiggers cover berry bushes.

How far must the curse of the $100 bill spread before we decide to do something?

Art Buchwald British scandal is spite

LONDON — I don't wish to put down our own Watergate affair, but when it comes to a good government scandal the British have us beat by a mile. Their latest scandal has to do with Sex.

Buchwald

It is the type of intrigue that even a charwoman can understand, having for its major characters cabinet ministers, lords, dukes and call girls.

While our Watergate investigation has to do with who bugged whom, the British inquiry has zeroed in on who slept with whom, and for how much. And while the Senate drones on endlessly about what one lawyer told another lawyer in the Watergate break-in, the British scandal delves into the motives of why a man of title, wealth and position would pay for pleasure in the arms of a fallen woman.

What makes the British story different than Watergate is that all the major players are keeping a stiff upper lip. There is no begging for immunity, no taking the Fifth, no threats to implicate others.

When Lord Lambton, Prime Minister Heath's defense undersecretary, was confronted with compromising photographs of himself and a call girl named Norma Levy, he did not say he was doing it on orders from higher authority. Nor did he explain he took his action to protect national security. He did not hide behind the Union Jack.

He said simply on the BBC when asked by the commentator (and this is an exact quote, which shows you why British TV is so much better than ours): "Why should a man of your social position and charm and personality have to go to a whore?"

"Because," Lord Lambton replied, "I think that people sometimes like variety. I think it is as simple as that and I think this impulse is understood by everybody."

The main fear in the so-called Lambton affair was that state secrets had been divulged during the liaisons. But Lord Lambton squashed that on his BBC broadcast. "Businessmen do not go with call girls to talk of private matters. If a call girl suddenly said to me, 'Please, darling, tell me about the new laser ray,' or 'What do you think of the new Rolls Royce developments?' I would have known that something was up."

What also makes the Lambton scandal more interesting than the Watergate is that there was more than one lord involved. As a matter of fact, after Lambton, Lord Jellicoe, the lord privy seal in Heath's cabinet, admitted to having affairs with call girls as well and tendered his resignation. There has also been a duke mentioned and nobody knows how many knights will eventually be involved.

I must say, the British newspapers are taking it very well. They are keeping the public fully informed on every last detail of the sordid affair, interviewing the call girls in question, the friends of the lords, the wives and anyone else who can shed light on what has become the best story since the Profumo affair. As far as British journalism is concerned there will be no cover-up.

Some Americans in London believe that the British broke the story at this time because they were jealous of Watergate.

"It was pure spite," an American State Department officer told me. "Britain knew it couldn't be a major power without a first-rate scandal and the only way it could top us was to find one with lots of sex in it. We consider the breaking of the Lambton affair at this time as a very unfriendly act."

The only bright side of the story, from the United States' point of view, is that although Lord Lambton has wiped Watergate off the front pages of Europe's newspapers, it's hard to sustain a call girl scandal for very long.

Watergate, on the other hand, will probably go on for years. Americans can take comfort that while Haldeman, Ehrlichman and Mitchell will remain household words for a decade, Lord Lambton, Lord Jellicoe, Duke What's-his-name and Norma Levy will soon be nothing more than a footnote in Britain's long and illustrious sexual scandal history.

Merry-go-round

A 'kiss-and-tell' ring is uncovered

By JACK ANDERSON

WASHINGTON — Topping all the other tactics used against the Democrats in the 1972 campaign, call girls were recruited to romance Democratic leaders and, between kisses, to wheedle political secrets from them at their Miami convention.

Senate investigators learned about this unique undercover operation from no less than ex-Attorney General John Mitchell. A summary of his confidential confession describes a meeting with Watergate ringleader G. Gordon Liddy at the Justice Department on January 27, 1972.

"Liddy arrived," states the summary, "with massive charts of an intelligence gathering program which was a huge structural operation with people in different places with different code names and included, among other things, the use of electronic eavesdropping devices, a call girl ring for the Democratic National Convention and other intelligence gathering operations."

Mitchell claimed he was "horrified by the magnitude and the budget" of the Liddy proposal. He, therefore, "directed Liddy to take his charts and burn them." White House counsel John Dean, who also sat in on the session, agreed with Mitchell that the scheme "far exceeded anything of rationality."

Liddy came back on February 4, according to the summary, "with another intelligence gathering plan but this time without charts. Dean was present and informed Liddy that it was an insult to the Attorney General to bring up matters like this."

But Liddy apparently was undeterred and his scheme strangely survived. By Mitchell's account, he was relaxing in Florida from the rigors of the ITT hearings when campaign director Jeb Magruder showed up with a paper outlining "an intelligence operation which he went through briefly and which included electronic surveillance."

"Mitchell told him," continues the summary, "he didn't want to hear anything of this type, and there was no question in Mitchell's mind that Magruder left Key Biscayne fully understanding Mitchell's position on electronic surveillance. Mitchell cannot understand how Magruder could have conceived that he had authority to commence such an operation."

The operation, presumably, included the kiss-and-tell project. Investigators have confirmed that call girls were recruited but have been unable to determine whether they were actually used.

During the confidential interrogation by Senate investigators, Mitchell also denied published reports that he received summaries of the Watergate wiretaps under the code name "Gemstone." "The first time he ever heard of Gemstone," says the summary, "was in Jack Anderson's column." (Our story said the Gemstone reports were submitted to Magruder.)

After the Waterbudders were arrested, Mitchell said "there were continual meetings both at the White House and CRP (campaign committee) concerning Watergate."

When he "woke up on time," he attended regular White House strategy sessions, which were held at 8:15 each morning. Apparently, these were meetings of the President's braintrust which, according to Mitchell, included top aides H.R. Haldeman, John Ehrlichman, Henry Kissinger, Charles Colson, William Timmons and Assistant Attorney General Henry Petersen.

"Watergate was discussed regularly at these meetings but initially was an unknown quantity," said Mitchell.

The presence of Kissinger and Petersen at these early Watergate sessions is interesting. Kissinger claimed he played no part in the Watergate affair; Petersen eventually was put in charge of the Justice Department's Watergate investigation.

Mitchell described Haldeman to the Senate investigators as "the man at the White House closest to the political scene." Mitchell also noted that the deposed presidential counsel, John Dean, "was working for him and was literally stolen from him by the White House."

Notes the Senate summary:

"Mitchell states that he was sorry to see Dean leave in that he was an extremely able, sophisticated and professional lawyer who operated in the true sense of confidentiality. He does, however, feel that based on what he has heard and seen of Dean recently that he has broken and he could not rely on him as he has in the past. He also has heard from Dean that he is having serious domestic problems."

It was Dean who introduced Liddy to Mitchell. The former attorney general, after consulting his diaries and logs, set the date as November 24, 1971. Liddy presented Mitchell with a memo outlining the work he was prepared to do for the campaign committee. "There was a brief paragraph," recalled Mitchell, "saying he could take care of intelligence gathering."

Liddy called on Mitchell again two weeks later to discuss the drug abuse program. Otherwise, Mitchell didn't see Liddy again until the January 27 and February 4 meetings to discuss the political espionage operation.

On June 15, Liddy paid his last call on Mitchell. But the ex-attorney general swore it had to do with a controversy over the Corrupt Practices Act. Two days later, Liddy's celebrated Waterbudders were arrested at gunpoint in the middle of their own corrupt practices.

Mowing grass too short is probably responsible for more lawn failures than any other single practice.

Scalping a bluegrass lawn weakens the root system. Result is a thin stand of grass, which paves the way for an invasion of weeds. Also, a closely mowed lawn will be more susceptible to injury from drought, insects and diseases, especially during hot summer months.

Bluegrass lawns should be cut at least two inches high throughout the growing season. A 2½ to 3 inch height through the summer is even better and is in itself an excellent crabgrass control.

Frequent mowing helps give a lawn a neat appearance. No more than one-third of the growth should be removed at one cutting.

If your grass gets quite long because your family is away on vacation, don't cut it back all at once. To reduce mowing shock, cut off a third of the growth, wait two days, then cut another third.

Renovate Strawberries
To renovate or renew a strawberry bed, first mow old tops of plants. Set lawn mower high enough to remove strawberry leaves but not injure crowns. Apply five pounds 5-10-5 fertilizer per 100 feet of row (10 pounds of sawdust is used as a mulch). Next, take a rototiller (or spade) and cut each plant row to a six-inch width. This sounds drastic but do it! Runner plants from the six-inch strip of "mother" plants will form a new matted row of plants. To be successful renovate as soon as harvest is finished. Apply about 1½ to 2 inches of water a week to the newly forming bed during June, July and August (include rainfall in total). This method of renovation can be used to fruit this "original" strawberry bed for a total of three to four years. Then establish a new bed.

Basements
Dry basements provide good economical space for many enjoyable family activities. Damp basements are a mess. And they provide little in the way of usefulness.

Almost all basement walls will crack to some degree. Even properly built and reinforced walls will develop hair line cracks. But these will not normally cause a problem if there is a drain tile around the footing and the dirt is sloped away from the house.

Where hair line cracks exist, a cement based paint will normally close the leak at least temporarily. These can be applied to the wall with a scrub brush and are relative inexpensive.

Where larger cracks are present, it's a little more difficult. If the crack is close to one-half inch wide or larger, it is best to "V" it out to where it is about one inch wide and one inch deep. Then brush it with a mixture of portland cement and water of a creamy consistency. Then fill the crack with 1 to 2 mixtures of cement and sand.

It is important to make these repairs when there is no water coming through the crack. This means that summer will probably be the best time for it.

There is no assurance that these larger cracks won't reopen when the basement walls settle or shift a little more. Contrary to public belief, extended dry weather is much harder on basements and foundations than is wet weather. During extended dry spells, the subsoil dries and shrinks away from your foundation and footings and settling can result. Then when it gets wet again, you notice the damage when it begins to leak.

Drain tile around the footing will be extremely helpful in minimizing leaks. This is cheap and easy to do during construction. The tile should be covered with inch to inch and one-half screened gravel to a depth of several inches. Its an expensive and trouble-some job to place a drain tile around an existing basement. But sometimes this is the only way you can relieve enough water pressure against a basement wall to stop leakage.

Relief of dampness and molds in your basement can best be done with a dehumidifier. Molds often develop, even in a basement that doesn't have water seeping through the floor or walls. This is because of the cooler temperature and higher relative humidity. A dehumidifier can lower the relative humidity and eliminate this problem. One word of caution though on using dehumidifiers. All doors and windows to the basement must be kept closed for the dehumidifier to work properly. The dehumidifier will remove the water from the air where it can be drained off through the basement drain. But if the doors and windows are left open moist air replaces the drier air and the dehumidifier works overtime and still doesn't do the job. Usually, there is no need for a dehumidifier in the winter months. Air conditioning will do the same.

Webworms
Sod webworms moths will soon be flying. These are buff colored moths, flying over lawns. As the moth flies a zig-zag pattern just above the lawn, egg laying is taking place. After noticing large numbers of moths, residents better plan to treat lawns about two weeks later. There will be a second generation of moths in July and a third during late August or early September. Spraying to kill the moths just doesn't work, but control of the larvae which causes the lawn damage will.

Sudden Death
Researchers surveyed 76 farmers and found that if these farmers were to die on the day they were interviewed, fewer than 10 per cent would have enough liquid assets to pay estate settlement costs and death taxes. In about 12 per cent of the cases, heirs would have to convert farmland into cash—through borrowing or selling to pay costs and taxes.

Of the 21 typical owner-operator farm situations all but four had 70 to 90 per cent of their farm capital in land and buildings.

The liquidity problem is especially serious for large farms. For instance, death taxes can take from 15 to 19 per cent of total farm capital.

There are a number of ways that some of the heavy tax burden can be lightened—but these methods aren't widely used by farmers.

For instance, if property is given away during one's lifetime, you pay a gift tax instead of an estate tax and the rate of taxation is lower.

With the tax advantage favoring gift transfers, it is surprising to find they are used only in a minor way, especially by owners of large estates.

Under present law an individual can, during his lifetime, give $30,000 tax exempt. In addition, he can give $3,000 each to individuals each year. For married couples, these amounts are doubled.

A couple with two children and four grandchildren could easily transfer an estate of over $700,000 without paying taxes. To do this, the couple would only have to start a program of systematically giving some 10 to 15 years prior to the end of their actual life expectancy.

By the same token, if they made no gifts during their lifetime, the federal estate tax could be over $200,000 on a $700,000 taxable estate.

The U.S. Department of Agriculture has asked that farmers make an effort to conserve fuel this spring and to report shortages to the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service.

The USDA has asked farmers to conserve fuel by keeping tractors tuned and by using minimum tillage practices. It also urged farmers not to buy more fuel than they need. This will assure an equitable distribution to all farmers, the ASCS reported.

The ASCS said some fuel suppliers have not been able to fully meet farmer's needs due to producer's inability to obtain enough supplies.

Survey Indicates Coffee, Eggs Lead Price Increases

By LOUISE COOK
Associated Press Writer
The American wage earner is going to have to bring home some extra bacon if he wants to keep coffee and eggs on his breakfast table, according to an Associated Press marketbasket survey.

The AP checked the prices of 15 food and nonfood products in 13 cities on March 1 and rechecked the items at the beginning of each succeeding month.

Of all items checked, 35.4 per cent increased in price in the three months from March 1 to June 1. 20.5 per cent decreased, 41.5 per cent remained unchanged and 2.6 per cent were unavailable on one of the two check dates. The total market-basket bill was up in 10 cities and down in three.

Coffee, up in 11 cities, and eggs, up in 10 cities, led the list of higher-priced items, with the increases at the checkout counter reflecting earlier increases at the wholesale level.

Experts in London, headquarters of the International Coffee Organization, blamed the increases in world coffee prices on crop failures in Brazil because of droughts and leaf rust disease, artificially high prices set by Brazil and Colombia for their exports and withholding of supplies by growers of the robusta variety of coffee, produced mainly in Africa and used particularly for instant coffee.

Most of the coffee increases came between May 1 and June 1, although prices started to rise earlier in some cities. The increases over the three-month check period averaged about seven or eight per cent.

Increases in egg prices varied sharply, ranging from two per cent in New York City to almost 20 per cent in Boston. They also fluctuated widely during the three-month period.

The costs reflected higher wholesale prices for eggs during the first quarter of the year. The Agriculture Department reported that egg prices decreased during the month ended May 15, but there was no immediate indication of a saving for the consumer.

A grocer in Miami, where a dozen medium brown eggs went from 57 cents on March 1 to 67 cents on June 1, said he was selling eggs at what were normally winter or higher prices. "Our supplier is going to go to a dollar a dozen by Christmas," he predicted. The store manager said he was making a 25 per cent profit on eggs.

The careful shopper still could find a few bargains. Butter and pork chops declined in more than half the cities checked. All-beef frankfurters rose in 10 cities from March 1 to June 1. Almost all the increases came in the first two months, however, and prices leveled off after May 1, despite higher wholesale prices and short supplies of livestock at market.

One reason for the steady price was that, in many areas, the meat products checked were selling near or at the maximum allowable under the ceilings imposed by President Nixon at the end of March on beef, lamb and pork.

The items on the AP's checklist were: chopped chuck, center cut pork chops, frozen orange juice, coffee, paper towels, butter, eggs, peanut butter, detergent, fabric softener, tomato sauce, chocolate chip cookies, whole milk, all-beef franks and granulated sugar.

The cities surveyed were: Albuquerque, Atlanta, Boston, Chicago, Dallas, Detroit, Los Angeles, Miami, New York, Philadelphia, Providence, R.I.; Salt Lake City, and Seattle.

The same supermarket was used in each city for all the price surveys. Standardized brands and sizes or their nearest equivalent were selected for the checklist.

The total bill went up everywhere except Salt Lake City, Los Angeles and Seattle. Items that were unavailable on either March 1 or June 1 were not included in the total either time.

The increases in the total tab ranged from less than one per cent in Providence, where the bill for 14 available items went from $10.29 on March 1 to $10.36 on June 1, to 6.8 per cent in Chicago, where the bill for 15 items went from $10.80 to $11.53.

Tips for Vacation Plant Care

With the vacation season here, many of us face the problem of what to do with our house plants while we are gone. Often this means relying on a friend or neighbor to tend them. For long vacations, this may be the best method, but for shorter ones we can fix the plants so that they can survive without us for one to two weeks.

Plastic bags in assorted sizes can give the needed help for maintaining our plants. First, water the plants thoroughly on the day before you plan to leave. Allow the pots to drain for a least one to two hours. At the end of that time slip each of the pots into a roomy plastic bag and close the bag over the top of the plant. If plants are small, several may be placed within one large bag. If your plants are too large for plastic bags available, use large sheets of clear plastic, or transparent clothing bags.

Locate the plants in the coolest room in the house. Houses closed in summer become hot and stuffy. Plants should be kept in rooms with the least heat buildup. If air conditioning is kept running during the vacation, plants need not be moved. Basement areas, however, are often cooler in most homes and should be preferred when adequate light is available. If there is no cool room in the house, place plants in a protected spot outdoors.

At no time should the plants in the bags at any location be in direct sunlight. The plastic traps the heat, which may be harmful to the plants. Indoors a north window should be preferred. If there is no suitable window, use fluorescent lights when available. Place the plants about 12 inches from the light fixture. Either keep the lights on continuously, or use a time clock to keep them on at least 12 hours each day.

To maintain many plants, collect them together on a table and cover them with a single large sheet of plastic supported on a frame. Tape the plastic to the table to seal in moisture.

After the plants are in place lift the plastic off the leaves as much as possible. Leaves in contact with the plastic stay wet and are more subject to disease.

Plants may remain untended for at least one week using this method. They can be left alone longer, but under the high humidity condition there is a possibility of disease buildup.

A method for reducing the disease problem is to treat the plants with the fungicide benomyl (Benlate). Spray the plants about two weeks before you plan to leave. After about 12 days give the plants another spray. Next place the plants in the bags. Disease can be kept to a minimum this way, and plants should be safe for at least two weeks.

Plants under plastic become very tender. Remove the plastic slowly after returning home. Open the plastic bags, and allow the plants to remain in the open bags for several days before removing them completely.

Another method of tending plants is with the use of wicks. These may be made from sash cord or jute rope with one end placed in the base of the pots. The other end is kept in a reservoir of water beneath the pot. Set up the system well in advance of vacation to make sure it is operating properly before you leave.

Farmers Not Doing As Well As It Sounds

By DON KENDALL
AP Farm Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Soaring prices for soybeans and corn sound to many people as if farmers are doing superbly these days, but a look at the calendar and at the rising costs of production might suggest otherwise.

Except for the early wheat harvest in the southern plains, farmers have not produced any substantial grain since last year. This is a time for planting and cultivation, not harvest, in the big feed and soybean areas.

Thus, when the market reports mention soybeans at $10 per bushel or corn at $1.80 per bushel, the people who actually are in position to benefit are usually not farmers but the second and third-hand buyers who originally bought crops from producers.

The Agriculture Department, which compiles national averages for prices farmers receive and must pay out to meet production expenses, reported that the over-all "prices paid" index rose 2 per cent from mid-April and was 14 per cent higher than in May last year.

But some of the specific items within the index indicate the cost problem confronting farmers is much more complex and serious. One of the main goals of the Nixon administration is larger meat output this year to help ward off further upward spirals at supermarkets.

But farmers, particularly those who feed cattle and hogs for the slaughter market, are thinking twice about feed costs. Those are so high at the present time that many will not expand their livestock feeding operations until relief is in sight.

Otis Breaks Out of Slump; Lifts Royals, 5-4, in Ninth

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Amos Otis, apparently feeling his bat was eloquent enough, refused to answer questions after his two-run single with two out in the ninth gave the Kansas City Royals a 5-4 victory over Cleveland Sunday.

Otis, whose blow snapped an 0-for-9 hitless streak, had a sign over his locker after the game, saying he would give no interviews.

The hit capped a three-run rally that began with Paul Schaal's single with none out. Gail Hopkins walked and Kurt Bevacqua bunted to force Schaal at third.

That brought up pinch-hitter Cookie Rojas, who had been sidelined with a back injury. Rojas singled, scoring pinch-runner Jim Wohlford. After a walk to John Mayberry, Cleveland brought in Ed Farmer.

Otis was the only batter he faced.

Rojas said, "I didn't feel rusty with the bat, but my legs felt like they were rusted when I was running to first." Manager Jack McKeon got the message and put Bobby Floyd into run for Rojas.

Floyd scored the winning run. Kansas City took the lead in the first when John Mayberry

Cards Win in 10

ST. LOUIS (AP) — "With a guy like him, you're always looking for ways to get him in the lineup," St. Louis Cardinals Manager Red Schoendienst said.

Schoendienst's reference was to Tim McCarver, a onetime St. Louis prodigal son who Sunday contributed a second straight winning hit to the current Red-birds hot streak.

McCarver on Saturday night was called on to pinch-hit and delivered a grand slam home run dumping the Houston Astros 6-2.

Sunday he filled in at first base because rookie third baseman Ken Reitz wasn't up to par and came through with a single in the 10th inning tipping the Astros 2-1.

The hits pushed the Cardinals' wins to three in a row and 11 in their last 12 games and

Ryun Pads Pockets With Pair of Wins

RICHMOND, Va. (AP) — Jim Ryun has added another $1,000 to his bankroll.

The ex-Kansas star captured two more mile runs on the International Track Association pro circuit over the weekend and is now ready for Wednesday's championship affair in New York even though he has a sore hip.

Ryun won in Louisville, Ky., Friday night with a four minute, 1.9 second clocking and again in Richmond Saturday night in 4:05.1.

The world record-holder in the mile, Ryun had planned to face Kip Keino in the two-mile in Richmond Saturday night but because of the aching hip that had bothered him in defeating Keino in Louisville the night before, he switched to the mile.

The Kansan turned in a 20 second final 160-yard lap and zipped past Keith Munson and Jerome Howe, the latter a former Kansas State athlete.

No records were set in Richmond.

Ryun gave this reason: "It's hard, very hard, with so many meets together. Next year it will be better. They'll be spread out more."

"You get tired, very tired, but most of it's in the head. It's psychological. You have to keep telling yourself, 'I can do it.' Relax, and try like blazes."

Ryun said his hip bothered him badly and he "wanted to give up. It really hurt. It wasn't until the gun went off I felt I could be competitive."

Foreman Will Defend Crown Against Roman

TOKYO (AP) — Champion George Foreman of the United States will defend his world heavyweight boxing title against Joe "King" Roman of Puerto Rico in Tokyo Sept. 1 in a program of two championship fights, Muneo Mizoguchi, Japanese fight promoter, announced Monday.

Roman is ranked No. 10 heavyweight challenger by the World Boxing Council (WBC).

The second title match is to be between WBC junior light-weight champion Ricardo Arredondo of Mexico and Morito Kashiwaba of Japan, the WBC's sixth ranking contender.

Mizoguchi said the title bouts will be held at the 15,000-seat

Budokan (Martial Arts Hall) in the heart of Tokyo.

Mizoguchi said the fight, to be Foreman's first title defense, was agreed upon on May 24 in San Francisco, and was authorized by the WBC Saturday in Mexico City.

Foreman won the title by stopping former champion Joe Frazier in the second round Jan. 22 at Kingston, Jamaica.

Court Beats Evert For French Crown

PARIS (AP) — "I wish Margaret Court had been in this form when she played Bobby Riggs," said Chris Evert. "She would have hit him off the court."

The 18-year-old tennis star from Fort Lauderdale, Fla., narrowly missed capturing the French women's title in her first attempt, losing to Mrs. Court, 3-0, 6-7, 7-6, 6-4 in a dramatic see-sawing final at the Roland Garros Stadium Sunday.

But Chris won the hearts of the 12,000 Parisian fans who cheered her winning points. Now she has a busy summer ahead—the Italian Championships in Rome, Wimbledon, Forest Hills and maybe a $20,000 challenge match against Riggs.

Chris had played Mrs. Court four times before and beaten her three times—each time on clay. That was why she was favorite to win again on the slow clay of Paris.

Mrs. Court has now won this title, the premier clay court crown of the world, five times. She first became French champion in 1962, when Chris was only seven years old.

The Australian now needs to add the Wimbledon and Forest Hills titles to become the first woman player to capture the Grand Slam twice. She already has the Australian title behind her.

Tom Gorman, U.S. Davis cup star from Seattle, Wash., faced Ilie Nastase of Romania in the men's semi-finals today. Adriano Panatta of Italy and Nikki Pilic of Yugoslavia were paired against each other in the other semifinal.

The men's event is two days behind schedule because of rain last week.

John Newcombe of Australia and Tom Okker of The Netherlands took the men's doubles title, beating Jimmy Connors of Belleville, Ill., and Ilie Nastase 6-1 3-6 6-3 5-7 6-4.

Mrs. Court and Virginia Wade of Britain won the women's doubles, defeating Betty Stove of The Netherlands and Francoise Durr of France 6-2 6-3.

singled in Fred Patek for his 50th run batted in of the season. "I'm halfway there—to 100," said the big first baseman.

Cleveland scored twice in the third when Buddy Bell and George Hendrick singled in runs. Hendrick homered with none on in the sixth and the Indians scored again in the eighth when John Ellis tripled in Oscar Gamble.

Kansas City got a run in the seventh when Steve Hovley singled in Gail Hopkins.

Bruce Dal Canton, who relieved starter Steve Busby with one out in the eighth, picked up his fourth victory against three defeats as the Royals completed a three-game sweep over the Indians.

"I didn't throw as well as I should," said Dal Canton, but "I needed a game like this, the club needed one."

McKeon evaluation of the sweep? "We did it the hard way, but maybe that's the best way."

The Royals travel to Boston for a game tonight that will have Gene Garber, 5-1, pitching for the Royals against John Curtis, 2-2, for the Red Sox. Cleveland is not scheduled.

Cleveland's Leo Cardenas (4) starts his slide into second as he steals the bag beating the throw from catcher Ed Kirkpatrick to shortstop Fred Patek.

'Torrid Tom' Weiskopf Wins by Three Strokes

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — Tom Weiskopf, winner of two of his last three starts and second in the other, is one of the hottest items on the pro golf tour right now, but he isn't ready to yell "Bring on Jack Nicklaus."

"I'm not going to say 'I can beat Jack Nicklaus,'" Weiskopf said after his relatively easy, front-running three-stroke victory Sunday in the Kemper Open Golf Tournament.

"I'm not going to say that. Because it wouldn't happen. But I'm not afraid of him. I'm not afraid of anyone. I feel that if I play at my best then I can win at any time," Weiskopf said.

Nicklaus was idle this week as Weiskopf romped home with a final-round 68 and a 271 total, a whopping 19-under-par on the 7,219 yard Quail Hollow Country Club course. It's a record low for this tournament that Weiskopf now has won twice in three years.

Lanny Wadkins, the youthful runnerup, didn't get closer than two strokes in the muggy heat for the final round and finished with a 69 and 274.

USAC Makes Changes In Championship Rules

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — The head of the U.S. Auto Club says the deaths and injuries at this year's Indianapolis 500-mile race "should not be used by critics of the auto racing sport to indict the dedicated individuals who constantly strive to make racing — and automobile driving — safer."

USAC President Reynold C. MacDonald said the club's "constant objective is to make auto racing safer and more enjoyable for everyone involved."

The USAC directors "responded quickly and positively to suggestions for rule changes" for the championship cars at a weekend meeting here, MacDonald said.

The major changes include shortening wing sizes from 64 inches to 55 inches in width on the rear of the car to "improve visibility and slow the cars somewhat in the turns."

All fuel must now be carried in the left side of the car, in a tank with a maximum capacity of 40 gallons.

The 40-gallon fuel cells in the cars' right side will be filled with energy absorbing material.

Perez' Prophecy Comes True for Reds

By HERSCHEL NISSEN. Associated Press Sports Writer
Tony Perez of the Cincinnati Reds made a prophecy to his teammate Clay "Hawk" Carroll as they left Three Rivers Stadium Saturday following a loss to the Pittsburgh Pirates. "Hawk, tomorrow it's going to be me and you," Perez declared. That premonition was fulfilled Sunday when Perez belted a grand slam home run and Carroll overcame a pulled leg muscle to pitch the Reds to a 5-1 win over Pittsburgh, halting the Pirates win streak at six games.

"We'd been losing and somebody had to pick up the team," said Perez. "...I just had the feeling we'd be the ones to do it."

The Pirates fell 4 1/2 games behind Chicago in the National League East. Elsewhere, the San Francisco Giants used two-run homers by Dave Rader and Garry Maddox in the ninth inning to nip the Philadelphia Phillies 5-4, the Montreal Expos beat the Los Angeles Dodgers 4-1, the Chicago Cubs blanked the Atlanta Braves 3-0, the St. Louis Cardinals edged the Houston Astros 2-1 in 10 innings and the New York Mets trounced the San Diego Padres 9-2.

American League scores: Milwaukee 7, Chicago 1; Detroit 8, Minnesota 2; New York 3, California 2; Kansas City 5, Cleveland 4; Oakland 12, Boston 1; Baltimore 7, Texas 1 in a game called on account of rain in the sixth.

Philadelphia's Ken Brett coasted into the ninth inning with a 4-1 lead over the Giants but gave up a single to Dave Kingman and a home run to Rader and departed. Mac Scarce walked pinch hitter Willie McCovey but the Phils seemed about to break their five-game losing streak when Billy Wilson got Bobby Bonds to ground into a double play.

But Tito Fuentes singled and Maddox belted his game-winning shot over the left field fence, No. 3 on the season. Greg Luzinski homered for the Phils. Hal Breeden drew a bases-loaded walk from Al Downing in the eighth inning to snap a tie and Clyde Mashore hit a two-run homer off Tommy John in the ninth, helping the Expos drop the Dodgers 2 1/2 games behind the Giants in the NL West.

Pitcher Milt Pappas snapped a scoreless tie with his 20th career home run in the sixth inning and hurled seven shutout frames before giving way to Bob Locker, who protected the Cubs' victory over the Braves. Tim McCarver's bases-loaded single with one out in the 10th inning snapped a tie and lifted the red-hot Cardinals to a 2-1 victory over the skidding Astros. It was the 11th win in 12 games for St. Louis while Houston dropped (1) its fourth in a row and (2) into fourth place in the Western Division.

New York's Tom Seaver held San Diego to six hits in recording his fifth straight success and ending the Mets' losing streak at three games.

Sealy-Faberge Title To Kathy Cornelius

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — Kathy Cornelius has been playing golf for 20 years, so you'd imagine that pressure doesn't mean much to her. But it took the barbs and jokes of two Hollywood film stars to keep her in the $100,000 Sealy-Faberge Golf Classic, which she won Sunday on the first hole of a sudden-death playoff with Judy Rankin.

"I feel that the key to my victory was that after bogeying the first two holes today, I didn't get too down on myself," said Mrs. Cornelius, after winning the richest prize in the history of women's golf. "I don't think I would have won the tournament if it wasn't for the settling effect my celebrity amateur partners, Jim Garner and Efrem Zimbalist Jr., had on me Saturday and today," she said.

She said she's never laughed so much or been more relaxed in tournament play than she was in the final two days of the rain-shortened, 54-hole event. Mrs. Cornelius was tied with Mrs. Rankin after regulation play was completed with 217 total, but sank a six-foot putt on the first extra hole, the par five, 472-yard 15th hole.

Steward Beats Fittipaldi To Grand Prix Checker

MONTE CARLO (AP) — It's three and three for Emerson Fittipaldi and Jackie Stewart in the first six races for the 1973 title of world champion driver. Fittipaldi, who replaced Pele as Brazil's sporting hero when he won the title last year, holds a slim four point lead over the little Scotsman in this year's race, despite finishing second to Stewart in Sunday's Monaco Grand Prix.

The race on the city street circuit, changed this year for the first time since 1929, pointed up the needle match between the two men who have dominated European auto racing this year. Stewart, 34 in two weeks time and brought up on the traditional old style circuits, fouled up the start, but recovered quickly to take the lead on the eighth of 78 laps and was never again headed. Fittipaldi, 26, and one of the new breed of drivers nurtured on "artificial" faster, broader tracks hung in second spot but could never seriously challenge Stewart. Stewart scored his 25th win to equal the all-time record set by the late Jim Clark. There are nine races to go on the championship trail—the next is in Sweden, June 17—and most of them are on the new-style tracks which could give Fittipaldi the edge.

Irvine, Ithaca Clash Tonight

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (AP) — California-Irvine is proving itself a Goliath using David's tricks.

The Anteaters, coached by mustachioed Gary Adams, exploded for six runs in the sixth inning of a rain-shortened seven-inning baseball game to defeat Eastern Illinois 6-1.

Today another "David"-Ithaca College will try to administer a crippling blow as play resumes in the National Collegiate Athletic Association's College Division World Series. On Friday, the Anteaters erupted for five eight-inning runs to defeat Missouri-St. Louis 6-5 after the Rivermen seemed to have the game won.

California-Irvine, now 2-0 in the tournament, takes on Ithaca College, also 2-0, in an evening match. The loser of that game will play Eastern Illinois, 1-1, in the nightcap.

The winner of the double-elimination world series will be determined Tuesday night. Ithaca eliminated defending champion Florida Southern 4-1 Sunday.

Missouri-St. Louis defeated Jacksonville, Ala., State 2-1 in another second-round game, sending the Gamecocks home winless in two tries.

Eastern Illinois defeated Missouri-St. Louis 7-5 in the final of four games Sunday, drowning the Rivermen's hopes for a title.

Doubles Winner

STOCKHOLM, Sweden — Raul Ramirez of Mexico and Edison Mandarino of Spain beat Tenny Svensson and Birger Andersson of Sweden 6-2, 6-4 for the doubles title in an international tennis tournament. Andersson later won the singles crown, defeating Svensson 6-4, 6-2, 6-0.

One Second Win

LEXINGTON, Ohio — South African Jody Scheckter withstood a furious challenge by Brian Redman of England to win the $80,000 Mid-Ohio L&M Formula 5,000 road race by almost one second.

Jim: "If West opened a club against South's diamond slam the chances are that South would have gone right up with dummy's ace of clubs. After that start the slam would be doomed to defeat. West didn't give South that problem because he opened the three of trumps. East played his eight."

Oswald: "Just looking at the North and South hands the best percentage play is for South to lay down his ace of diamonds at trick two. If he drops the king he is only worried about an overtrick. If it turns out that East started with three diamonds South plays a third diamond. East will win with the king and eventually South will have to decide how to avoid the loss of a spade."

Jim: "If South does that and West is the man with three diamonds and East shows out, what should South do now?"

Oswald: "In that case South's correct play is to play his ace and king of spades to see if he can drop the queen. If it doesn't fall he tries the club finesse. This risks a two-trick set but gives him his best play for the slam."

Jim: "Your play also turns out to be the winner. It also is the correct line since it gives declarer chances in both black suits to pick up the trick he needs."

Who Are Savors—Jesus Commune Members or Children's Parents?

First Place For God

Micah Farmer is the 22-year-old adviser to a Children of God commune near King City in west-central California. The Children of God and other Jesus communes are engaged in a tug-of-war with parents at

By RODNEY ANGOVE
Associated Press Writer
SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP) — Parents from across the United States have organized to "rescue our children from the Jesus communes," says a Californian who is their national coordinator.

Ted Patrick, a former community relations officer for California Gov. Ronald Reagan, says the group he coordinates is called "the Parents Committee to Free Our Sons and Daughters from the Children of God — FREECOG."

About 500 parents are seeking to locate youths in communes such as those run by the Children of God — COG — "and get them back on the right track," Patrick said.

But commune leaders hold different views about "the right track," and they resent what they consider is undue parental interference. One commune has filed a $1.1 million libel and slander action against Patrick and three FREECOG parents.

Patrick himself has been charged with second-degree kidnapping, unlawful imprisonment, conspiracy and third-degree assault. The charges were brought in New York last month by a member of the New Testament Missionary Fellowship, who claimed he was forced into a car while walking to a prayer meeting. Patrick said the fellowship member was "rescued."

The tug-of-war between the parents and the communes has transcended theological considerations and touches on questions of family, freedom and rights to property.

FREECOG parents say they favor the resurgence of religion among youth, that religion has held an important place in their families.

But they describe themselves as religiously sophisticated, and they do oppose the type of communes which they say try to dominate their children to the exclusion of normal parental relations.

The Jesus movement over-all is seen by many church scholars as a sign of spiritual vitality which helps many youths escape the drug scene and solve other problems. They also feel it may be pumping life into organized religion.

Perhaps the best known in the movement is the Children of God, which leaders say once had 135 communes in the United States. COG leaders say only 40 remain, but 100 have been set up in Europe, South and Central America, the Caribbean, Australia, Japan, South Korea and Thailand.

In California, the COG communes have diminished from 10 to three in only the past few months, according to 22-year-old "Micah" Farmer. Micah is his adopted Biblical name and he's an adviser to one COG ranch near King City in west-central California.

But COG is not the only target of FREECOG, said Patrick. In California alone there are about 40 communes of all types, and FREECOG is concerned about many of them, he said.

In about two years, Patrick said, he has gathered statements from about 400 youths who have turned their backs on the communes. Last year, he said, he quit his state job to devote full time to FREECOG.

Patrick said the youths almost always told him "they had been programmed to do anything their leaders ordered." He contends their testimony, on recorded tapes, supports the parental complaint that communes completely dominate their children — brain, body and bank account. Parents say their children are difficult to locate and are difficult to visit privately. Parents complain that their children sign over cars and savings, and often write home for more money.

"These young people say they are taught to go against their parents, their family churches, and the schools and the government," Patrick said.

The tapes, used in persuading other youths to quit, are made after "deprogramming" sessions.

"Deprogramming" is the process, sometimes lasting days, through which Patrick and FREECOG parents try to convince a youth he should abandon a commune. It consists of arguments in which Patrick, himself a former evangelistic organizer, tries to demolish the youth's faith in the commune's leaders.

He said most youths maintain they have been "hypnotized" and "brainwashed."

One youth, Pat Alexander Jr., 23, of Masontown, Pa., said recently, "They put them under mass hypnosis and mesmerism — I'm a living testimony. I would never have done the things I did... They took my mind away."

Ila Meese of San Diego said her daughter Barbara, 20, spent only one day and one night with commune recruiters. When Barbara came home, she told her parents that "they tried to program me. The leader told me, 'If I tell you to go out and blow up a bank or murder your parents, you would do it, because it would be God's will, and God speaks through me,'" Mrs. Meese said.

Mrs. Meese and other parents with similar stories were interviewed in the California Capitol where they sought official help.

Patrick said his 14-year-old son Michael was approached by commune recruiters. Michael told his father, "They were kinda scary. Dad, like they were hypnotized — like zombies."

COG leader Micah Farmer calls the hypnotism charge "ridiculous."

A sweet-voiced 22-year-old called Shiloh, who speaks for the COG commune in Crockett, Tex., calls it "totally false."

In a telephone interview, Micah said, "If true, we wouldn't be in operation. We've had the FBI infiltrate our colonies, and they return with nothing but good to say."

An investigator for the California Department of Justice, Steve Crawford, said, "We've heard a lot of accusations, but no proof of anything illegal." He said donations to cult leaders are apparently voluntary, hence legal.

Jack Winkler, assistant attorney general of California, said the parents' charge of "alienation of affections" is no crime in California.

In Florida, former Opa-Locka Police Chief John Ripa said he is trying to help parents.

"What I'm concerned about is the breaking up of the family," Ripa said. "Parents can visit their children in these communes, but the kids can't go home. Why not?"

Ripa told The Associated Press an investigation "is developing." But he is holding off legal action, he said, because some youths may be emotionally harmed if required to testify in public.

Commune leaders deny the youths cannot go home.

"We don't agree with the Catholic Church, but we certainly wouldn't take somebody present. Some parents claim the communes dominate their children too much, and they have tried to get their children back by force. Micah says of parents that "They find it hard to take second place to God." (AP) from there and lock them inside here," said Susan Alamo, who with husband Tony operates the independent Tony and Susan Christian Foundation near Saugus, a small town about 25 miles north of Los Angeles.

"There are still laws in this country," Mrs. Alamo said. "There are no bars on our windows. These kids can come and go, and do."

A British businessman, Kenneth Frampton, tells a different kind of story. He said in a recent newspaper interview that he gave the COG free use of a warehouse and three other buildings in Bromley, England, and "in return, they have stolen two of my sons from me."

Shiloh said the COG is basically "giving kids a new way of life in which they can be happy. Please come and see for yourself. We're really not trying to hide anything, and we're not afraid of anything."

Patrick said the COG often invites newsmen and others, and "they put on a beautiful show. But you have to interview the kids, and they won't let me do that. I know the questions to ask."

Shiloh said, "Our main problem is that parents blame us for the way their children were before they joined. A lot of them were living away from their parents before we got them."

As for donations, she said: "Yes, basically we believe in sharing, like in the Book of Acts. Most kids don't have much. But some do — cars and savings, and they share it."

Micah believes parents are protesting "because what we're doing takes a 100 per cent commitment, to Christ. A youth accepts it. Some parents find it hard to accept. It's a selfish love for the child. A kind of possessiveness. They find it hard to take second place to God."

The much-copied COG was started by evangelist David Berg, now about 55 years old. Shiloh said Berg is no longer very active, although he still sends out "instructions, opinions and suggestions" signed "Moses."

Evangelist David Wilkerson, author of "The Cross and Switchblade," says Berg left the United States because of parental pressure.

Wilkerson, whose book was made into a movie starring Pat Boone, says he has tried to "expose" the COG "because of the countless parents who have contacted me whose children have been kidnapped by the Children of God."

A FREECOG group in Houston, Tex., circulates what it says is a copy of a COG application blank describing COG as "revolutionary."

The applicant's pledge is, "I promise to give all my goods and income, let you open my mail, obey rules and officers."

This "instant obedience" must be broken down by "deprogramming," said Patrick. He described the case of Pat Alexander, whose parents lured him from the Tony and Susan commune with promises of a square meal and a shopping spree for clothes, blankets and other items in short supply. Commune leaders let him leave.

They kept the promise, then drove him to a motel where an uncle and his father stood guard physically until the "deprogrammer" arrived.

"First thing you do is get their Bible away, because that's their crutch," Patrick said.

The youth was "saved from the Jesus freaks," he now says, by arguments such as this one that Patrick uses: "God gave humans one thing different — a mind to think. Once someone takes your mind away from you, you're an animal."

Alexander is now trying to pick up the pieces of a university career.

Some parents go to bat for the COG. Clayton Fluit of San Luis Obispo, Calif., says he is delighted his 14-year-old daughter spends weekends at a COG commune.

"I'm a sergeant in a state correctional facility," Fluit said in a telephone interview. "I know people pretty well, and I know when a con game is being run. Believe me, these are real, solid kids."

The $1.1 million libel and slander action was brought in Dallas, Tex., after FREECOG picketing of the Federal Building Oct. 15, 1971, during efforts to solicit official action against COG.

The COG suit alleges that FREECOG persons said within the hearing of press and public that the COG:

- Is a subversive group.
- Kidnaps young persons.
- Drugs youths.
- Is part of a $1 million racket to extort money from converts.

Tired of Watergate—Here's a New Game

WASHINGTON (AP)—Tired of jokes about the Watergate caper? Then let's try a new game, "Stennis, Anyone?"

The idea is simple. You take the names—last names only—of members of the U.S. Senate and House of Representatives and put two or more together to make the name of a special piece of make-believe legislation.

For example, there's the Pepper-Rooney Pizza Standards Bill. And the Devine-Wright Presidential Succession Bill. And, unfortunately, the Tunney-Fish Salmonella Control Bill.

The credit—or the blame—for this somewhat useless pastime goes to a man named Dick Pence who, when he's not promoting "Stennis, Anyone?," is the assistant to the director of the legislation and communications department of the National Rural Electric Cooperative Association.

Actually, the game has its genesis a while back in some anonymous punster's creation of a piece of legislation celebrating the ringing of bells in an Asian city when a certain famous Asian athletic team came to town.

That piece of legislation was the Long-Spong-Fong Hong Kong Ping Pong Ding Dong Bill.

Pence has been spreading the game nationwide through the Rural Electric Newsletter which he edits.

There are three basic rules for "Stennis, Anyone?"

—The names used must be those of present members of the House and Senate.

—If you have to explain your bill, consider it rejected.

—No first names.

Some more examples:

The Bible-Church-Chappel-Bell-Tower Prayer Amendment.

The Moss-Hart Performing Arts Bill.

The Cannon-Towell Keep America Clean Bill.

The Scherle-Ketchem Police Assistance Bill.

The Butler-Baker-Cook Household Employees Wage Bill.

The Hunte-Heinz-Pickle-Pepper Food Additive Bill.

The Young-Aiken-Hart-Case Daytime Television Standards Bill.

The Young-Studds Paternity Bill.

The Nun-Diggs-Lent Religious Freedom Bill.

On occasion, single names are permitted:

The Chisholm National Trails Act.

The Heckler Freedom of Speech Act.

Pence said he is still searching for the man able to use the names of Abourezk, Hamerschmidt, Kluczynski and Domenici.

College Closed

The dotted line outlines the campus of Parsons College at Fairfield, Iowa, where "last rites" for the 98-year-old school, closed by bankruptcy, were observed with graduation ceremonies Saturday. Enrollment fell from a peak of about 5,000 to 925 this spring. The school was known as a center for other colleges' dropouts but began to decline when accreditation was withdrawn in 1967. (UPI)

Communists Maneuvering For Support of Africa

WASHINGTON (AP) — Russia and Communist China are quietly expanding military aid to African countries as they maneuver for influence and support there, according to U.S. intelligence sources.

Overshadowed by crises elsewhere, the sometimes competing Soviet and Chinese moves in Africa are logged by U.S. intelligence officials who consider them important in the global power balance.

The U.S. arms aid program in Africa is strictly limited by Congress, with Ethiopia and Tunisia sharing the total $1.3 million in grants proposed for the new fiscal year starting next month.

A series of U.S. intelligence reports traces a pattern of Communist Chinese and Soviet aid initiatives in at least eight African countries.

According to one recent report, Red China is preparing to provide Tanzania with its first jet fighter planes, a squadron of 20 MIG 19s and MIG 17s, by late this year.

Peking sent the Sudan six MIG 19s last year when the Communist Chinese were trying to capitalize on the Sudan's alienation from Russia. China also started about $42 million in economic aid projects there.

Since then the Sudanese leaders, who blamed the Russians for allegedly helping in a coup attempt against them, have made up with Moscow and the Russians are building a logistical complex in the Sudan, among other things.

Meanwhile, the Chinese appear to be moving in on Guinea which has relied on a Soviet naval squadron to protect it for nearly two years. Within the past two months, China delivered four fast Shanghai-class gunboats for Guinea's coastal defense. A 40-man Chinese training group accompanied some of the boats, becoming the first Chinese military presence in that West African country.

Nearby, in Portuguese Guinea, the Russians are estimated by U.S. intelligence to have provided more than 5,000 tons of weapons and ammunition to anti-Portuguese rebels in the past year.

On Africa's east coast, the Russians landed about 25 T54 and T55 medium tanks in Somalia this spring. Somalia is strategically located along the Indian Ocean and the Gulf of Aden, and has been a focus of Russian attention for at least a decade.

Clifford Proposes Nixon Resign, Pick Successor

NEW YORK (AP) — Clark Clifford, defense secretary in the Lyndon Johnson administration, proposed in Monday's editions of the New York Times that President Nixon resign and cooperate with Congress to pick a successor.

Vice President Spiro T. Agnew would also resign under his plan.

The article was published on the newspaper's Op-Ed, or opinion, page.

"The executive branch virtually has ceased to function, and I cannot see it getting any better, only worse," as new disclosures develop about the Watergate affair, Clifford wrote.

"We can see that the damage done to the Nixon Administration is irreparable," he said.

Clifford said the Constitution's 25th Amendment provides for the vice president to assume the presidency in the event of resignation. It also provides for presidential appointment of a new vice president with confirmation by Congress if that office is vacant, he said.

Under Clifford's plan, Agnew would resign first, to be replaced by someone selected by Nixon from a list of three names provided by Congress. After Congressional confirmation, Nixon would resign and the new appointee would take over as president. Clifford added the appointee should agree not to accept a 1976 nomination.

"The promotion of Mr. Agnew to the Presidency would result only in a truncated operation composed of the remnants of the Nixon Administration," Clifford wrote. What is needed, he said, is "action that will restore the people's confidence in their government. This would mean a new, clean slate, a new White House staff, a new Justice Department, a new, experienced and respected head of the FBI."

His plan "would assure him (Nixon) a place in history for his unselfish dedication to the nation's good."
